VAHEY DECLARES FOR HAMLIN

I favor the nomination of Charles S. Hamlin, because I regard him as the strongest candidate under present conditions and believe if he is nominated that he will sweep the State.—JAMES H. VAHEY, in statement to Democratic delegates.

James H. Vahey, one of the three candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination at the State convention at Faneuil Hall a week ago to-day, declared in a statement issued to-day that he favored the nomination of Charles S. Hamlin as the best move for the Democratic party of the State.

"WILL SWEEP THE STATE IF NOMINATED."

Mr. Vahey's statement follows:

"I am informed that the Democratic State Committee is endeavoring to get a poll of the delegates to the State convention for the purpose of assisting the nominating committee in the performance of its duties. At the State convention I withdrew my candidacy in the interests of party harmony.

"I am not now a candidate and desire that my friends should not vote for me. It would be a gross breach of faith for me to be a candidate now after my statement in the convention. The contest is now between Mr. Foss and Mr. Hamlin. The committee has considered no other men.

"The easiest course for me to adopt would be to avoid any further responsibility by not taking any part in the controversy. This course I cannot take. The situation is too serious and requires the best efforts and highest courage of all of us.

"If Mr. Foss is nominated I will do as much for him as anyone else in the State. This statement is made without the slightest element of personal feeling, but solely because of solemn party duty and responsibility.

"I favor the nomination of Charles S. Hamlin because I regard him as the strongest candidate under present conditions and believe if he is nominated that he will sweep the State."

STATE COMMITTEE BEGINS CANVASS OF DELEGATES

The Democratic Committee to-day began the work of canvassing the delegates to the State convention as to their preferences for a candidate for governor.

The last of the letters to the delegates to last Thursday's convention, asking whom they prefer for a candidate at this time, were sent out at noon to-day. There were 1,057 letters mailed. It is expected that the replies will begin to come in this afternoon, and that practically all of them will be in the hands of William F. Hayes, secretary of the Committee of Four, by Saturday afternoon. None of these replies will go to the State committee, as some suppose, but all will go directly to Mr. Hayes in registered envelopes.

Mr. Hamlin has declared that he will be satisfied with the result of this canvass. The Committee of Four will try to get a pledge of the same kind from Congressman Foss.

The committee met to-day at Hotel Bellevue, remained in session a few minutes and adjourned until 2 o'clock. Then they met with the Ballot Law Commission in the State House to get a decision as to the right of the committee to name a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. If the ac-

SPAIN IS ON VERGE OF REVOLT

MADRID, Oct. 13.—The pall of revolt which has hung over Spain to-day became more menacing than at any previous time as the republicans, radicals and socialists prepared to celebrate the first anniversary of the execution of Professor Ferrer, who was put to death following the Barcelona outbreak last year, as an inciter of anarchy.

Spain's drastic military precautions to stamp out revolt against Alfonso's throne came to a climax to-day. For a fortnight troops have been massed in the streets at Madrid, Valencia, Barcelona and other centres of discontent. In Catalonia, the hotbed of agitation against monarchy, Gen. Weyler who declared that he would stifle the first signs of rebellion in blood, was at the head of a great military force.

Not alone the cities but Spain in its entirety was an armed camp to-day. The frontier and provincial districts were peopled with soldiers. Artillery was massed at all strategic points. Soldiers with bayoneted guns and double rounds of ammunition were used as police. The government's plan was to overawe the people by a tremendous military display.

The day dawned with reports of numerous arrests. From Catalonia came advices that many persons were seized for disposing republican colors and for gathering in the streets of the towns. The last orders given by the war minister was to prevent crowds from gathering, to stop all speechmaking and destroy all republican flags. Secret gatherings of anti-monarchists were forbidden as the worst form of lawlessness.

To-day was the original date set by the anti-anarchist leaders for rebellion against the King. It was reported from Paris and London that embassaries of the Republicans had succeeded in negotiating loans from the same agency which had financed the Portuguese revolt, and that vast quantities of arms and ammunition had been shipped into Spain.

Premier Canalejas, whose shrewd diplomacy has been noted behind all of the King's recent acts, tried during public feeling by a statement given out on the eve of Ferrer day.

3 MORE SHIPS FOR HUB-AUSTRALIA LINE

John Wylde, who arrived in Boston on the Zealand from Queenstown and Liverpool, says the Dutch-Australia line, which inaugurated a service between this port and Australia last year, intends to place three more ships in the trade this season. Mr. Wylde has just returned from an extended tour of England, Belgium, Holland and Germany and is well-known in local steamship circles. He says he believes the Winter will show a marked improvement in steamship business as the demand for American products throughout Europe seems to have revived.

RATE JUMPS IN WEST HELD UP TILL FEB. 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Railroads operating in official territory and western trunk line association territory have skirmished with the interstate Commerce Commission on the latter's intimation to further suspending new freight tariffs, which advanced rates over various roads. The rates are now under discussion and were to have become effective to-day. The Commission ample time to propose modifications of the various phases of the tariffs. The rates will be suspended until February 1.

BARGE WITH BOSTON TRAIN DROWNS MAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Charles Garland, of the Whitehouse boathouse at One Hundred and Seventy-first street and Hudson River, was drowned and Joseph Bell had a thrilling escape from death when a barge, towing another and two scows, ran down by the transfer No. 22 of the New Haven railroad's line converting the Boston express between Bell Gate.

MAN'S BODY TAKEN FROM THE RIVER

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 13.—A body believed to be that of Michael F. Lucy, of No. 23 Kent street, was taken from the Merrimac river to-day by the East boat hunter. Lucy was employed by the Chase-Shawmut Electric Company, and disappeared Wednesday. He leaves a father and a sister.

$500 AWARD TO WOMAN.

A jury in the Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham to-day returned a verdict of $500 in favor of Mrs. Margaret E. MacDonough of Hyde Park in her suit against the Boston Elevated Railway for injuries alleged to have been received April 3, 1909, on a car at Forest Hills. She sued for $5,000.

C. H. BROOKS ARRESTED BY U. S. OFFICERS

Charged with using the mails illegally, Charles H. Brooks, manager of the Reclamation Investment Company, which occupies an entire floor at No. 85 Devonshire street, was to-day arrested by United States Deputy Marshal Ruhl. Brooks gave his address as the Parker House.

The offices of the company are on the sixth floor of the building, and are sumptuous in the extreme. A great deal of literature, explaining the scheme of the concern, was found there. The literature says that the company was capitalized at $10,000,000, 1,000,000 shares at $10 a share.

The prisoner was taken to the Federal building where he was interviewed by United States District Attorney Asa P. French. Mr. French said that the arrest was made on the complaint of 10 individuals, but he declined to discuss the matter further.

MEXICO BLOCKS PLAN OF REVOLUTIONISTS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13.—Plans for another revolution against the reign of President Diaz of Mexico were nipped in the bud by the arrest of Gustave Madero, it was learned here to-day. Madero, who is a brother of Francisco Madero, defeated candidate for the presidency, is in prison, charged with having tried to induce army officers to mutiny. The alleged plot was exposed by General Mellton Hurtado, who declared that Mexico had made overtures to him. Two other men are in prison, and it was reported to-day that more arrests would follow.

COUNSEL ASSIGNED ACCUSED SLAYERS

SALEM, Oct. 13.—Judge Schofield in the Superior Court to-day assigned counsel to defend Andre Ipsen and Wasili Ivonkowsay, the Lynn yeggmen, charged with the murder on June 20 of Thomas Landergan and Patrolman James H. Carroll in that city. William D. Chapple of this city, former president of the Massachusetts Senate, will represent Ipsen, and J. F. S. Mahoney of Lawrence will be counsel for Ivankowsky.

COLUMBIA HOCKEY TEAM GETS COACH

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The Columbia University hockey management has anticipated the season and secured Percy Le Sueur as coach. He is ranked as one of the best players in Canada and was goalkeeper on Ottawa's team which won the Stanley Cup. Le Sueur will be on hand here about the middle of next month and will remain until January 15. It is reported that he will play on one of the teams of the American Hockey League during the season.

MY! HOW WE GROW IN MR. TAFT'S STATE!

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The census bureau to-day made public the following population returns: North Carolina—Washington, 25,748; last census, 20,979; increase, 22.7.

Ohio—Hamilton, 25,270; last census, 23,914; increase, 17.5. Lorain, 28,883; last census, 16,028; increase, 80.2

Wisconsin—Madison, 25,531; last census, 19,164; increase, 33.2.

LABOR ASKS FARMERS' HELP IN LEGISLATURE

WORCESTER, Oct. 13.—The delegates in attendance at the third days' session of the State branch of the American Federation of Labor in A. O. H. Hall, to-day voted to secure the co-operation of the farmers of the State to secure legislation in the interest of the people as a Brown recalls.

Voted, that it be the unanimous sense of this convention that the farmers of this Commonwealth be urged to take non-partisan political action similar to that of the labor unions and endeavor to advance the interests of the common people.

The farmers of the State, it was declared in a similar resolution introduced by Mr. Brown, would have received scant consideration at the hands of Governor Draper had it not been for the opposition of organized labor toward him. The resolution, in effect, said that dissension has been sown in the ranks of the farmers by the Republican party.

Voted, to instruct the next seven cities council to exacted a letter of thanks to Hon. Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, for his services in the Senate and the House who supported the seven labor measures. Ted Leonard, of the State House, which were indorsed by the Federation.

Voted, to request Donald D. Driscoll, speaker of the punishment meted out to second offenders arrested in Boston for being drunk. He said during the last month there were 425 men and women confined in the Charles Street Jail and at Deer Island for being drunk and committing other disorderly acts and that they had all been paroled on his recommendations. Driscoll is a Federal Point institution commissioner.

Driscoll denounced the custom of putting drunkards in jail for simply over indulging in drink.

Two ballots were taken for elected president. There were five candidates in the field. Leo Gallagher, of Lynn, received the highest number of votes, but was declined a white.

Joseph F. Donnelly was elected secretary of the Legislative committee.

MRS. TAFT VISITS BOY AUTO INJURED

BEVERLY, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Taft paid a visit to-day to the Salem Hospital to inquire about the condition of Wilfred E. Crowell, the six-year-old boy, who was struck by her auto. She brought a basket of flowers and fruit. The boy is expected to leave the hospital in a few days.

Among those who visited the president to-day were Wilfred G. Conchis, chief engineer of the Panama canal; General W. H. Bixby of the United States Engineering corps; who was in charge of the raising of the Maine; Ernest Seton Thompson, the author, and James E. Watson.

Boston visitors to-day were Samuel J. Elder, Sherman W. Whipple and Charles Theodore Mills. Mr. Taft attended to-day from Millbury, where she has been spending a few days with "Aunt Belle." Secretary Norton will start for Chicago, where he goes to register.

YOUNG WIFE FOUND DEAD.

Mrs. Concetto Christadoro, twenty, of No. 200 Dorchester avenue, was found dead at 8 a. m. to-day on the floor of her bedroom. Medical Examiner Leary ordered the body to the City Hospital morgue. The police think death was due to natural causes.

LABOR REVOLT MAKES CRISIS IN REPUBLIC

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The great railway strike and general industrial war to-day assumed the definite proportions of a civil revolution. With the railroads paralyzed throughout the republic, Paris facing a food famine, and with the army placed on a war basis through the calling out of the reserves, the Socialist element in the Chamber of Deputies to-day raised a constitutional issue.

They declared that the Government had overridden the people in summoning the reserves. This was the trump card of Premier Briand. If the reserves respond it will cripple the great industrial strike by depleting the strikers' ranks and recruiting France's army.

MARTIAL LAW THROUGHOUT FRANCE.

Martial law practically existed throughout France to-day. Leaders in the strike said that by night not a wheel would be turning on any railway system.

So menacing President Fallieres and Premier Briand declare the situation to be that the army to-day is on a war footing. Nearly two arrests have been made. Briand declared that the strike leaders would be dealt with in a severe manner and orders were given to jail all men making incendiary speeches.

Paris faced a famine to-day. The authorities said that so far the suffering extended only to the poor, although the serious conditions which will follow today will react upon rich and poor alike.

Six strike leaders, including M Lamoine, secretary of the general committee of the strikers, were arrested to-day at the office of the Socialist newspaper Humanite after the police had been openly defied. M. Jaures, leader of the Socialists in the Chamber of Deputies, and sixteen of his fellow members gathered at the office of the Humanite to discuss the program of the strike.

Foreign Tourists Fleeing.

The police raided the office, but they did not secure entrance until after a stout resistance had been made. Afterward Jaures denounced the arrests.

Foreign visitors in all the French cities are leaving as soon as they are able.

The employes of the subway system on Lyons and Mediterranean have voted to join the strikers.

All of the trunk railroad systems were tied up to-day, although efforts were made to run trains, using soldiers as trainmen. The employes of the Northern, the East ern, the Western and the Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean systems were united in common cause. The employes of the Metropolitan subway of Paris and the suburbs have declared in favor of the strike, although no time was set for the walkout.

The masons and allied building trades voted to walk out in sympathy, and while no definite time was set, it was reported that this strike would take effect to-day. Other trade unions had the strike question under consideration to-day, and among the union men there were many leaders who demanded that every branch of labor walk out and join in the movement and the country industry in the nation.

Like a Military Camp.

This city had the appearance of a military camp to-day. Soldiers were every where. The railroad terminals were guarded with troops, assisted by the municipal guard and the gendarmerie.

General Baichin, military Governor of Paris, had been warned of the extreme gravity of the situation and, in fear that violence would crop out in the capital, drastic measures were taken. The streets are patrolled with soldiers with fixed bayonets and batteries of cannon have been drawn up in parks about the garrisons for immediate use.

The coast ports on both sides of the country, all the frontier towns and Paris itself are crowded with tourists. Foreign travellers who were caught here have paid fabulous prices for automobiles to carry them out of the country.

The mail service becomes worse daily. An automobile express was first tried, but this proved inadequate to the needs. The government played its trump card in calling for the army reservists. This was the lobbing move that could have been made. Should the strikers refuse to swer the call as they have voted, the country will face internal insurrection. If it was pulled out should the strikers weaken and answer the call to arms the backbone of the strike would be broken at once.

Premier Is Denounced.

Radicals denounced Premier Briand's courses, declaring that it was arbitrary, and that he was forcing the issue.

The Minister of Public Works to-day requisition all the tugboats and barges in the name of the government that he could find, and a strange flotilla sailed up the Seine for the coast to bring back a cargo of foodstuffs.

Reports of violence from various sections of the interior came into Paris to-day. In some instances railroad property was destroyed, and in others telegraph and telephone wires were cut. The loss to commerce has already reached a tremendous total.

Seven hundred sacks of American mail which was stalled at Havre were sent to Paris by boat up the Seine.

M. Jaures decries the methods adopted by the Government and declares that the calling out of troops will result in a national wave of anti-militarism.

Fear Reign of Terror.

A reign of terror is feared to-night should the electrolians strike as they have threatened to do, leaving the entire city in darkness. Bloodshed, destruction of property and every other form of outrage would prevail, it is feared, if this step shall be taken. The Radicals and Socialists now are reported to have amalgamated their interests, acting upon the perilous industrial situation as offering an opportunity for carrying out their anti-government aims.

Make a Military Issue.

The Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies met this afternoon and subscribed to a resolution to support the demands of the strikers. The deputies also pledged themselves to endeavor to have President Fallieres call an extraordinary session of the Chamber for the consideration of the questions involved. The deputies drew up a manifesto addressed to the country, declaring that they would immediately bring the question of calling out the military reserve force to the attention of the Council of State as an alleged misuse of the French law governing the assembling of the reservists.

Nearly 5,000 coal miners in the district about Courrieres have been thrown out of work on account of the strike, as the companies are unable to ship their product.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 13.—The third game of the series between the All Stars and Athletics was played at Saltz Park this afternoon, before about 3,000 persons.

The series is not attracting any attention from the local fans, who figure that the Athletics are not trying their utmost or else are stale.

McAleer has selected Doc White and Billy Sullivan as his battery for this afternoon, and figures that the southpaw will repeat the victories of the two preceding days.

Connie Mack said that he would use Krause and Livingstone for the entire game this afternoon, with Dygert held in reserve.

To-morrow's game will be played in Washington and Saturday's here. On Saturday Mack will repeat with his three stars—Combs, Bender and Plank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The first of the post series games for the championship of Manhattan between the New York Yankees and the Giants, opened this afternoon, after a long conference between the players, managers, and umpires, which took place in the morning.

New York has never been more interested in the series than it is this year, and every indication was that all records for attendance and enthusiasm under like conditions would be broken.

In the long run, the Highlanders were the favorites in the betting, odds being quoted at 10 to 8 on the American League team. On the other hand the smaller investors preferred to bank their coin on the Giants. To-day's game, however, decided what the odds on the entire series would be.

The $10,000 guarantee demanded of each manager as an evidence of good faith was provided to-day and placed in the hands of President Lynch of the National League.

MANY TO ATTEND DEMURRAGE HEARING

The interest in the demurrage hearing to be held by the Interstate Commerce Commission at the Postoffice building Monday, at 10 a. m., is intense throughout New England. Shippers and producers will come to the Chamber of Commerce from all six states, and the feeling seems to be until the railways are able to give more efficient service they should not use the free unloading time from 96 to 48 hours. It is expected that a large number of shippers and receivers throughout New England will be present to add the chamber in its protest.

TWO-HOUR BLAZE IN NEW LONDON, CT.

NEW LONDON, Ct., Oct. 13.—A big fire raged here to-day which did damage estimated at thousands of dollars. The blaze started in a candy store in Bechtle Block, Patterson and Peterson streets, and spread to the Bechtle dry goods store and to about half a dozen others. The fire department managed to get the fire under control after a battle lasting two hours. A large part of the property damage is due to smoke and water.

MACLEOD DROPS HIS CANDIDACY

Frederick J. Macleod, chairman of the Democratic State Committee and of the Democratic Council, one of those who may be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eighth District, to-day issued a formal letter of withdrawal to the delegates of the Eighth District Democratic Convention. It was expected that Macleod would be the Democratic candidate against Congressman Samuel W. McCall, but the arduous duties of the Committee of Four have compelled him to drop his congressional campaign. Frederick C. Hatch of Cambridge and Whitfield Tuck of Winchester are still candidates for the nomination.

SENATOR ALDRICH BACK FROM EUROPE

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich arrived from Europe to-day on the White Star liner Adriatic.

With Senator Aldrich were his wife and their children, Lucy and Samuel. Senator Aldrich would not discuss the political situation. "I have been away as a vacation," he said, "and know nothing of what is going on. I am not talking politics now." The Senator with his family departed for Providence.

VETERAN U. S. COURT BAILIFF IS DEAD

John W. Monahan for eighteen years employed as a messenger and bailiff in the United States Circuit Court, is dead at the home of his son, John W. Monahan, Jr., No. 11 Sydney street, Dorchester.

Mr. Monahan was almost seventy-nine years of age. He was born in Graigue, County of Longford, Ireland, November 12, 1831, and in the early 40's came to America, making Boston his home, where he engaged in newspaper work.

ANOTHER HUNTER STRAY-SHOT VICTIM

WOLFBORO, N. H., Oct. 13.—Gordon Humphrey, connected with the millinery house of Leon Hudnut of New York, is in a serious condition at his home here as a result of being struck by stray shot while hunting. Humphrey and Conductor Moses Morrill of the B. & M. were gunning in the Wolfboro woods when Humphrey was struck in the eye and the right hand. He was taken to his home here and is in a serious condition.

MORGAN ANGRY, QUITS BISHOPS' CONFERENCE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13. J. Pierpont Morgan unmistakably and with great emphasis has placed himself out, lost and almost against the opinion by the Protestant Episcopal Church of faith healing by means of prayer or suggestion, and the House of Bishops in today meeting will not fix most distinguished members.

The financier, who is in attendance at the Convention of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church, listened to a spirited argument on the appointment of a committee to investigate unction for sick for sake of healing rather than for spiritual benefit. After patience had apparently been exhausted, Mr. Morgan jumped from his chair and as he left the convention said to a friend:

"That's about the silliest thing I ever heard. Any time the convention gets to the point where it is willing to listen to that kind of talk, then I have very pressing business matters awaiting me elsewhere."

"You mean that you don't like it?" asked the other.

"It is the most disgusting stuff I have ever listened to," was the sharp answer. "I have heard many absurd statements and from that platform down more than I ever listened to before. I'm going home now and won't be back today."

While the adoption of a resolution crystalizing suffragan bishops is probably the most important action yet taken by the convention, it did not create the stir among the delegates that was felt when it was announced that the House of Bishops had adopted a resolution providing for a committee to investigate faith healing.

This is the resolution which has developed in the House of Bishops the most pronounced line of action. The resolution being adopted by the clerical House, but defeated by the laity.

In all probability healing by prayer will be brought up again in the House of Deputies, and should the latter decide to reverse its former action, the committee will be appointed to bring in a report at the 1913 convention in New York.

EIGHT ESCAPE FROM FLAMES IN SOMERVILLE

Eight persons were driven into the chill air in their night clothes, and three policemen risked death by flame early today to rescue a woman supposed to be on the burning fourth floor of the tenement at 28 Arthur street, Winter Hill, Somerville. The fire caused damage of $4,000, entirely ruining the upper story.

After the flames had been discovered at 4 o'clock by a mailman, Sergeant Ras and Patrolmen Lewis and William Johnston dashed to the fourth story, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kline, the apartment then being a mass of flames. They covered their faces with wet cloths and dashed through the room, groping their hands and knees, groping in darkness for Mrs. Kline, whom they believed to be either asleep or unconscious. Later that she was away for the night, and her husband was out of town on business.

It was by the hot water boiler closet of the Kline apartment that the fire originated, the police stated. The flames extinguished their flames only after the fourth floor and roof had been burned through.

The building is owned by W. S. Cotting of Boston, and has 180 windows on the front floor of the house live Mrs. E. M. Bolingame, her daughter and two sons occupied the second floor is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. D. Hutchinson and the former's two brothers. On the first floor live Mr. and Mrs. U. F. Morehouse.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers in Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

MORAL OF ESTHER QUINN CASE: "LOVE MAKES LOONIES OF ALL"

So Says Ada Patterson, Who Knows Plaintiff in Peck Suit.

By ADA PATTERSON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—To those who, myself, knew Esther Quinn in her proudest days, there is a moral in her situation of today and tomorrow and of all the to-morrows.

To those who read of and those who know the latter, Miss Quinn stands in much the same unlovely light of a woman who undertakes to publicly publish a stain on his character and to love her, always a bedraggled and somewhat hideous figure.

But there are those who knew her as Addison Exley knew her in full, as there is contained in such an Edna as was a girl who enjoyed and deserved admiration, the best sort of admiration, which is of the intellect.

Forsook Her Rules for Peck.

She seemed, in one line or three column sentence, to be an ideal confidence woman. She was clever and cheerful, spent a well poised, civil but reserved. Here was the true business attitude, demanding respect for ability, permitting no familiarity quaintance by persons who crossed social lines paid than that business necessitated.

She had not lost total a man of different habits and standards of living, who, with pressure and to was departing with angry eyes and indignant footsteps to linger about a cashier's desk for long periods writing machine for a word and she espionaged the eyes and footsteps.

"It is my invariable rule," she said, "I never break it." But play. She did, and for a close-whiskered, salon-faced, self-centred man, described by his wife as an "intimate" and bearing the unpleasant, unpleasant name of Peck. The moral of her fall from the honorable business woman to that of a poor pawner in the hearts of possible ones is the told and the loonies of us all.

We can pray to be saved from temptation. We may delve it flashy or our wits for fortunate relation here up maxims. We may recover sooner than others because some of us possess wonderful resources, give power the fight, but we can't wholly elude it. Sooner or later it catches us as do the other trains, of the rule of purpose, fame and death.

While it rages we are all loons. We may only succeed in but every one else knows it. Esther Quinn is known to those who are nearest to in the street.

PECK SENT BOOK.

MISS ESTHER QUINN AND PROF. HARRY THURSTON PECK.

Love, brief but tyrannical, made Napoleon write fond, foolish abandoned notes to Josephine. She was too languid to answer. Love made the iron-willed speculator, seemingly invulnerable Bismarck a love sick swain that the stars seemed to him mere fortunate relation here up maxims. We may recover sooner than others because some of us possess wonderful resources, give power the fight, but we can't wholly elude it. Sooner or later it catches us as do the other trains, of the rule of purpose, fame and death.

While it rages we are all loons. We may only succeed in but every one else knows it. Esther Quinn is known to those who are nearest to in the street.

PECK SENT BOOK.

Charmed by "a Close-Whiskered, Self-Centred Inkmaniac."

"But isn't it the first duty of every one to earn a good living at whatever he knows he can do well? When he has done that he can afford to make experiments."

A strangle or Rockefeller could not give sounder advice. Yet the young woman capable of giving it waited for a quarter of her life for positive words from an exclusive man. She "tried to teach his side," as she herself says. Love had made a close-headed woman loony. It had blunted her sense of the fee that men, much like children, are most like them in this, that they will go to one more willingly if you don't go to them.

Take Nothing For Granted.

"I thought from what he said that he meant"—she explains of the long waiting for words and acts from an inkdoer. If Miss Quinn had been counselling any one else, she would have said:

"Love and business are the same in one respect. In neither of them take anything for granted."

A look is not legal tender. Unspoken sentiment is not a promissory note in the bank of human affairs, either of love or business. Mooning glances mean less or worse than nothing, unless they are accompanied by straightforward proposal of marriage. Hand-holding and heart-pressings are counterfeit coin unless they are the partners of an engagement announcement, or the echo of wedding bells.

All this and much more Esther Quinn would have known had her mental vision been at that time clear. Unfortunately it wasn't. Love makes loonies of us all.

ARGUE MILK RATE CASES TO-MORROW

Final arguments on the petition of Boston milk contractors, that the old rates for carrying milk be restored will be made before the full board of Railroad Commerce Commissioners at Washington beginning tomorrow morning. Several hearings were held on the Federal field ing in this city recently, at which Gov ernor Charles A. Proctor of the Commission presided. After the arguments by counsel representing certain Boston dairymen have been concluded, it is expected that the Commissioners will take the matter under consideration and render a decision at a later date.

LAWRENCE ITALIANS GIVE DRAPER MEDAL

The delegation of Italians which represented their countrymen of Lawrence at the Columbus Day celebration presented to Governor Draper a large solid gold medal. The gold piece is more than three inches in diameter, and on one side is an excellent likeness of the Governor, and on the other a columbian design and inscription.

The delegation was introduced by Frank Caverani, Esq., of Lawrence, and Hon. Benoit Jouville Court. Frank Mangaro of Lawrence made the presentation.

24 NEW CHOLERA CASES IN ITALY

ROME, Oct. 13.—The official report on the cholera situation in Italy shows there have been 24 new cases during the past 24 hours. Of these two occurred in Naples, 12 in the province of Caserta, eight in the province of Salerno and two in the province of Palermo. Of the eight deaths in the same period one occurred in Rome.

INSPECTOR A SUICIDE.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 13.—State Factory Inspector Edward E. McClintock committed suicide by hanging himself with bedding in the insane asylum in Overbrook, Medham's bed here, where he was in the institution since August 10. He was formerly an alderman in this city.

One Effect of Automobiling

It is now generally recognized that more men and women are becoming bald today than ever before, and the cause is automobiling. They stir up a certain lot of dust, and in this dust are all sorts of microbes and germs. These settle upon the hair and take lodgement in the scalp, thus setting up a diseased condition that works its way down to the hair roots. Then the hair begins to fall out. There is only one thing and that is frequent washing with Birt's Head Wash. Ordinary soaps and shampoos are positively injurious, because they contain an excess of alkali, and alkali has a deadly effect on the hair. Birt's Head Wash is made of neutral soap scientifically combined with Glycerin, Yolks of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and a small quantity of Salicylic Acid, to destroy germs and remove dispose dandruff. Sold by drug and department stores, 25c. a tube, jars, 50c.

STATE COMMITTEE FAVORS JUDGE TO HELP DEMOCRATS' 'BIG FOUR'

Vahey Comes Out Strongly in Favor of Hamlin's Nomination.

tion of the ballot law commission. Is such that the committee thinks another meeting necessary at once it will be held, otherwise an adjournment will be taken until Saturday.

It was believed by some of the members of the committee that a nomination might be made on Saturday.

Major Robert J. Crowley of Lowell and former Mayor William P. Lyons of Springfield, the men who have favored Hamlin in the committee votes, declared to-day that they will agree to the selection of any one of the judges who have been suggested for the place.

Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the Democratic State Committee and President Joseph A. Maynard of the City Committee, the two other members of the Committee of Four, were unwilling to say what they would do.

It is known that Macleod and Maynard, up to the present have refused to vote for anyone for a fifth member of the committee until he has been passed upon and approved by Mayor Fitzgerald and Martin M. Lomasney. They have refused to vote for three men.

Refuse To Vote for Judge.

Judge Henry K. Braley of the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice John A. Aiken, of the Superior Court.

Judge Charles A. De Courcey of the Superior Court.

Judge Franklin G. Fessenden of the Superior Court.

Democrats Insist Foss Declare He Will Abide By Committee Decision.

Former Judge Charles S. Miley of the Superior Court.

Assistant District Attorney Michael J. Dwyer of Suffolk County.

They have voted for Josiah Quincy, who holds a $5,000 position as member of the Transit Commission under Mayor Fitzgerald; for Dr. John W. Coughlin of Fall River, a recent Foss convert, and for Daniel T. O'Connell, who is known to have been approved for the committee place by Martin M Lomasney. Maynard Lomasney's personal representative on the committee of Four, have also suggested the name of Charles F. Riordan, a whiskey salesman, who was recently removed by Governor Foss from the Boston Police Commission.

Macleod has refused to vote for any of these men, declaring that he will not vote for any man whose professions speak for their ability to weigh evidence and for their disinterestedness.

There was considerable talk to-day about an Independent Foss candidacy for Governor in the event of Hamlin's nomination by the Committee. Charles S. Hamlin has declared that he will support the nominee of the committee. Eugene N. Foss has issued a statement offering to support the man favored in the better canvass of the convention delegates.

Demand a Pledge From Foss.

The threat of Chairman Macleod to take the matter of nominating a candidate for Governor into his own hands by calling another Democratic State convention, has evoked out of the program of possible moves by a vote of the Democratic State Committee, 19 to 5 against such a move. Even Macleod's own committee, with which he can be expected to wield a whip over the heads of the Committee of Four, has turned him down on this proposition.

It is understood that James H. Vahey still adheres to the opinion expressed by him just before the Faneuil Hall convention adjourned, that "it would be fatal for either Mr. Foss or myself to take the nomination, so hopelessly split is the sentiment between us."

It was suggested to Messrs. Maynard and Macleod to-day that they secure from Eugene N. Foss a statement similar to the one issued by Charles S. Hamlin, that he will support the party nominee for Governor. Such a statement, it was pointed out to Maynard and Macleod, would tend to remove the suspicion that Foss intends to run as an independent if the polls in the event of his defeat for the regular Democratic nomination.

Favored One of Judges.

It is understood that the Democratic State Committee went on record, at the meeting hurriedly called by Macleod, in favor of the selection for the fifth place on the Committee of one of the justices whose names have been suggested.

Patrick H. Keeley, the prominent Boston lawyer; James J. Phelan, a leader in financial circles; General Charles H. Taylor and Bernard M. Wolf, who occupies a high place in Boston business circles, were also suggested for fifth member of the committee by Major Crowley. It was Crowley who suggested the present and former court justices and Assistant District Attorney Dwyer.

Concerning the choice of a fifth member, Major Crowley said to-day:

"I think these men are of a high type and the selection of any of them would probably end this deadlock. I do not see how my brother Macleod, as a member of the Bar, can consistently turn down such names as those of the judges, some of them men who were practicing law before he was admitted and men who could not be approached with any improper suggestion—nobody would dare to do it. I do not wish to make any distinction, but in particular I urge Judge Aiken and Judge Braley."

Will Canvass Delegates.

Thirty-two of the fifty-four members of the Democratic State Committee responded to the hurry call of Chairman Macleod for a meeting to take up the matter of a party nominee for Governor. Many others had to reach headquarters at No. 15 Beacon street by way of the Elks' Home, the City Club and the escapes, because of the immense crowd gathered in front of headquarters to view the Columbus Day parade.

The business, so far as the choice of gubernatorial candidate may be affected was the committee's stand in favor of no one of the three named above for fifth member of the nominating committee. The adoption of this resolution:

"Resolved, that a special delivery letter be mailed to every regularly elected member of the recent State convention with a special delivery return envelope enclosed, addressed to William F. Hayes, secretary committee of four, having power, to-day a candidate for Governor, requesting their reply immediately, stating their preference for the most available candidate for Governor at this time for the information and guidance of the special committee above named."

Democratic Situation.

Canvass of convention delegates, by special delivery letter, for choice for Governor.

Answers of delegates to be "for information and guidance" of the nominating committee.

Vahey out of race. Declares for Hamlin.

State committee, 19 to 5, turns down Macleod suggestion that delegates be reconvened.

State committee favors selection of Justice of Supreme or Superior Court for fifth place on committee.

Talk of Foss as independent candidate.

MR. HEARST'S OFFER OF $50,000 FOR FLIGHT STIRS ALL AVIATORS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The impression created by the $50,000 prize offered by William Randolph Hearst for the first aeroplane flight across the American continent is world-wide, affecting not only aviators here and abroad, but arousing eminent public men and women who are accustomed to dealing with large problems.

A. L. Westgard of the Automobile Touring Club, who left New York on Tuesday to cross the continent in a motor car as a special commissioner for Mr. Hearst to blaze the way for the aviators, finds that this sentiment prevails all along the route. In every town and hamlet where he stops he meets the leading citizens of the region who discuss the larger aspects of the flight. At every point he finds that the business men individually and in their commercial and social organizations are anxious to do something to induce the aviators to fly over their communities while on the way to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Westgard covered 153 miles yesterday. They started early from Kingston and lunched at Delhi, where they were entertained by the Mayor and the Board of Trade. Though the day was raw and blustery in the open country, Mr. Westgard reports that there were only nominal atmospheric disturbances in the Catskill valley. He strongly recommends the route he took as a flying course for the airmen on their transcontinental journey.

To-day he will make a short run, stopping at Watkins' Glen where he will be the guest of Assemblyman W. E. Loffingwell. To-morrow morning he goes to Rochester where he will be entertained by the local aero club, and by several automobile organizations.

A special cable from Paris to the New York American says that Louis Bleriot the first man to fly over the English channel and inventor of the famous monoplane which bears his name, is enthusiastic over Mr. Hearst's offer.

"Mr. Hearst's $50,000 offer for a flight from one ocean to the other is remarkable," said M. Bleriot. "It puts America in the position it should have occupied long ago so far as financial encouragement to aviation is concerned. The prize is generous, and I am not surprised that it should be made by Mr. Hearst. I know him well and I consider him a fine type of sportsman as well as a man of great foresight.

Weymann The Man Says Farman.

"The only factor in the flight from New York to San Francisco that bothers me is the number of mountains," said Henri Farman. "Otherwise I think it is perfectly feasible. To my mind the man who attempt it would be Gabriel Weymann. He is daring and skilful and he knows America. I believe the prize will be won before a year has elapsed. I think the rules are as liberal as they can be made, and I can see no reason why foreign aviators should not try for the $50,000, except that it might cost them too much to go to America.

Gabriel Velsin, one of the famous brothers who were among the pioneer aeroplane builders in France, said: "The flight is not difficult. It is only trouble. I foresee is in providing the aviator with assistance when he has to make repairs.

"I think the route should be studied for at least six weeks before the aviator starts. We have many pupils who fly a minimum of 800 miles a week around the measured course."

20 HURT IN CAR CRASH.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—Twenty passengers were slightly injured when two steel cars collided near the aviation field in St. Louis county.

HELP REACHES FIRE REFUGEES

BEAUDETTE, Minn., Oct. 13.—With Governor Eberhardt passing energetically among them, slapping the hardy woodsmen on the back and speaking a word of encouragement here and there to the heroic women who refuse to complain, the fire refugees were happier today than at any time since the terrible disaster.

Relief is beginning to come in fast. In addition to the St. Paul train, which arrived with Governor Eberhardt and a number of State officials, another special from Winnipeg arrived today. Beaudette is rapidly becoming a village of tents, which have been brought in in large numbers. The Crookston people brought in four thousand loaves of freshly baked bread, with a general line of groceries, clothing and $1,000 in currency.

With the arrival of Theodore Stalenhoe from twenty-five miles south of the Rapid River, practically all the settlers in the Beaudette-Wee zone have been accounted for. Stalenhoe and his two cousins walked twenty-five miles through the burned forests.

REDEDICATE CAPITOL.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 13.—The New Hampshire State Capitol will be rededicated October 25. All the people of the State are invited to the exercises.

GIRL PLAYING HIDE AND SEEK KILLED BY CAR

Nicholas Quealey burst into tears when he entered the Relief Hospital to-day to make arrangements for the removal of the body of his little girl, Marie. She was nine years old. Across her forehead there was a black mark. She had been hit by a car while playing "Hide and Seek" near her home at No. 37 Decatur street. She died in about half an hour, never having regained consciousness.

Marie was in the fifth grade at the grammar school and was considered one of the brightest pupils in the school. Presley had entered her home a few years ago when her mother died suddenly. Then Marie and her brother John, with their father, had gone to live with a relative, Mrs. Daniel Byrne.

Madeline Hall and Elizabeth Collins, two little girls of the neighborhood, called on Marie. The three girls and John went out to play.

They had played a few minutes under the electric light at Vine and Chelsea streets when Marie ran into the house to get a coat.

"Better put on your sweater, dear," said Mrs. Byrne. "It's chilly to-night. Be back at 8 o'clock."

"Yes, I will."

They were having a particularly happy, lively time, under the shadow of the swaying, giving seat to the playing. John was hurling and Marie was looking for him.

"Ah, there's John!"

And with a dash Marie started across the trolley track. She screamed and then lay mangled under the fender of the car. John, seeing, dragged the girl out from under the car. Father Spencer from St. Catherine's Church was called. But the little girl was beyond human aid and the good priest could only say a prayer over her. They took the child to the hospital where she died.

TO JOIN BATTLESHIPS.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 13.—Four hundred and two apprentice seamen who have been chosen for service with the Atlantic fleet are preparing to leave the Newport naval training station. The exact date of their transfer to the battleships to which they have been assigned has not been announced, but it will be not later than October 20.

CAPRON QUITS CONGRESS FIGHT

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 13.—The Second Congressional District Committee will meet at 10:30 to-morrow to consider the matter of choosing a candidate for congress, in the place of Congressman A. B. Capron, who has declined to run. It is rumored that ex-Governor George H. Utter of Westerly will be the choice of the committee.

Capron's reason for declining to run is his poor health.

HENRY GALLISON, NOTED ATHLETE WEDS MUSICIAN

ARTIST, IS DEAD

Henry Hammond Gallison, first American painter to achieve the honor of having one of his works placed in the National Museum of Italy, is dead of apoplexy at his home at No. 94 Brattle street, Cambridge. The funeral will be held at noon Saturday at the chapel at Mt. Auburn cemetery.

He was born in Boston, May 20, 1850. He was married in June, 1886, in Paris, to Marie Reuter of Lubeck, Germany.

Edward F. Carroll, former prominent Melrose High School athlete and now a Boston real estate broker, associated with John C. Kiley, another real estate expert, in the Kimball building, was married last night to Miss Agnes G. Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lynch of No. 64 Ivy street, Brookline. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. F. Quinn of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Jamaica Plain. Miss Anna J. Lynch attended her sister as bridesmaid and John C. Kiley was best man.

FATHER WEDS TYPIST AS SON TAKES A BRIDE

Father and son took brides at the same hour when at the rectory of St. Mark's Catholic Church, Dorchester, John Lally Sr., of No. 16 Alston street, Dorchester and president of the United States Column Company of Cambridge, married Miss Ellen T. Lally of New York city. And John Lally, Jr., married Miss Catherine Fitzgerald of Dorchester, a distant relative of Mayor Fitzgerald. Mr. and Mrs. Lally Sr., were married by the Rev. John Daly, while the Rev. M. J. O'Connor of St. James' Church, Boston, officiated for Mr. Lally Jr. and Miss Fitzgerald.

The elder Lally is fifty-two years old. His bride is his cousin. For several years she was a stenographer in the office at the United States Column Company, and later entered his home, as caretaker and mother to his children. She is thirty-two years old.

John Lally, Jr., is twenty-six years old, and he is a draughtsman and a clerk in his father's office. He is a graduate of the Waltham High School, and in his schooldays was a star athlete. He was a member of the Waltham football team, that never was defeated. His bride is a daughter of Mrs. Richard A. Fitzgerald of No. 28 Brent street, Dorchester. Her brother is secretary for United States Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire.

The attending couple for Mr. and Mrs. Lally Sr., were Miss Sarah Lally and Joseph Lally, daughter and son of the groom. For Mr. and Mrs. Lally, Jr., Miss Margaret Lally, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and Joseph Hanley of Waltham was best man.

Following the double ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. Both couples left for New York on their way to Atlantic City, where they will spend their honeymoons together. For their hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Lally, Sr., will be at No. 16 Alston street, and Mr. and Mrs. Lally, Jr., will be at home to their friends at No. 459 Talbot avenue.

TURBINES START FOR THE PACIFIC

Today the turbine steamers, Harvard and Yale, which for the past two Summers have been running between New York and Boston, leave New York for the Pacific Coast a trip of 15,000 miles. The Harvard is in command of Captain Sears, a veteran pilot of the Pacific Coast, while the Yale is in command of Captain South. Prospect stops will be made during the trip.

SURELY REGULATES YOUR KIDNEYS AND ENDS ALL BLADDER TROUBLE.

In all the world there is no man or woman who can afford to neglect the slightest kidney disorder for one single day.

Kidney diseases are the most dangerous, because the first signs are seen in other parts of the body before anything wrong is noticed with the kidneys themselves.

Some of the symptoms, though, cannot be mistaken; for instance, a constant aching or misery in the back, sides or loins, or headaches and dizzy spells, nervous twitchings, disturbed sleep, inflamed or puffy eyelids, heart palpitations, rheumatic pains, weakness, bilious stomach or a feeling of languor and fatigue. Sick, unhealthy kidneys also cause thick, cloudy, offensive urine or it is full of sediment, irregular of passage and often uncontrollable or attended by a sensation of scalding.

The time to cure kidney trouble is before it settles into Diabetes, Dropsy, Gravel, or Bright's Disease. The moment you suspect the slightest kidney, bladder or urinary disorder, begin taking Pape's Diuretic as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine at any price, nor anywhere in the world, which will effect so prompt a cure. In just a few days you feel and know that the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs are healthy, clean and normal and all danger passed.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will vouch for the responsibility of Pape Thompson & Pape of Cincinnati, Ohio, who prepare Pape's Diuretic—50 cent treatment—sold by every druggist in the world.

BOSTON GIRL FOR WHOM REFORMATORY BOYS MADE PLATE

MISS LILLIAN P. GRANDY

GETS GIFT FROM CONCORD BOYS

Members of the Y. M. C. A. D. L. S. and S. S. societies who are inmates of the Concord reformatory have sent to Miss Frances Keating a complete token of their appreciation of a visit to her in the institution. It is a handsomely mounted plate inscribed with her name and also reading:

"Trip of The Circus."

As you have left us a lasting impression of your goodness and kindness, we may this souvenir serve you as a token of our deep sense of appreciation of it.

Y. M. C. A. D. L. S. S. and I. C. C. Massachusetts Reformatory, Sept. 12, 1910.

A visit in prison and ye visited me. A friend in need, is a friend indeed.

The touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

The people shall be my people, thy God my God.

Miss Keating recently entertained the entire young men and boys who are confined at the Reformatory with readings from the play, "Trip of the Circus."

HEAVY TRUCKS ARE READY FOR LONG CONTEST

By J. C. KERRISON.

Almost every detail of the Commercial Motor Truck Contest of the BOSTON AMERICAN on October 21 and 22 has been completed, and every one is awaiting for the date of the holding of the same. The course selected is in the very best possible condition, and the cars themselves are fit to travel twice the distance and carry their individual loads.

Accompanying the cars on this run will be a two-ton combination fire wagon fully equipped, carrying a four gallon chemical tank, considerable hose and extinguishers, and, in fact, everything that will be found in a fire wagon of a regular organized and well conducted fire department. The D. P. Nichols Company of Cambridge will furnish this Fraser-Miller, and it will act as official car, demonstrating to the crowds at the rides and keep time for each. The very latest in fire apparatus, this wagon will not concede in any of the classes and will be known as an official car, carrying the official insignia and be at the disposition of the referee and members of the protest board.

Referee Harry W. Knowles will hold a meeting of drivers on Thursday afternoon, coming prior to the start of the run, when all instructions will be issued and the various rules and regulations will be gone over and explained.

The committee is to hold a meeting in the afternoon room, when it will make the arrangements and approach the points of route.

The contestants in the race must be inspected on Thursday afternoon next by the official inspectors, Messrs. Hackett, Sennett, Hodgkins and Bowditch, and will be notified as to the hour they will report to Winthrop square and at 8 o'clock all must from there start.

Winter, Tremont, Boylston, Arlington, Beacon to Cottage Farm Bridge, where they will be sent away at intervals of one minute on the first contestant.

As to the matter of hotel accommodations, Manager Gould, of the Hotel Touraine at Newburyport was very kindly consented to place all his rooms at the disposition of the writer, entirely free of charge, and these are cared for by him in his usual first class manner. The writer, however, does not intend to take advantage of the matter of hotel accommodations, as he has secured quarters on the Commonwealth avenue line, this line runs that evening.

The cars upon their arrival in Newburyport will be parked at Bartlett square over night. They will be guarded by police till the morning start. No one will be permitted to work on the cars, only those are in contest although it will be possible to move the cars from the sidelines.

MAYOR ONCE MORE ON "SWEET ADELINE"

Mayor Fitzgerald in the combination role of leader soloist and conductor of a citizens' chorus was an added feature to the delights of the columbus day festivities. Just as the crowd in the Tremont street stand was about to pour forth the afterall the third verse, after the parade had passed, the city's chief executive mounted the high platform, lifted his hand and calling out for all to join him in singing America, "Sweet Adeline" was done with great volume and excellent effect, with the time marked by the Mayor himself.

"Give us a solo, Mr. Mayor," cried several, and then the request became general. His Honor was offdient, but shielded and gave "Sweet Adeline," to the delight of the crowd. They demanded an encore and got it. Then there was more choral singing in which the Mayor joined and the hundreds, rapidly growing into thousands, might have gone on indefinitely had not the Mayor bowed a fina farewell.

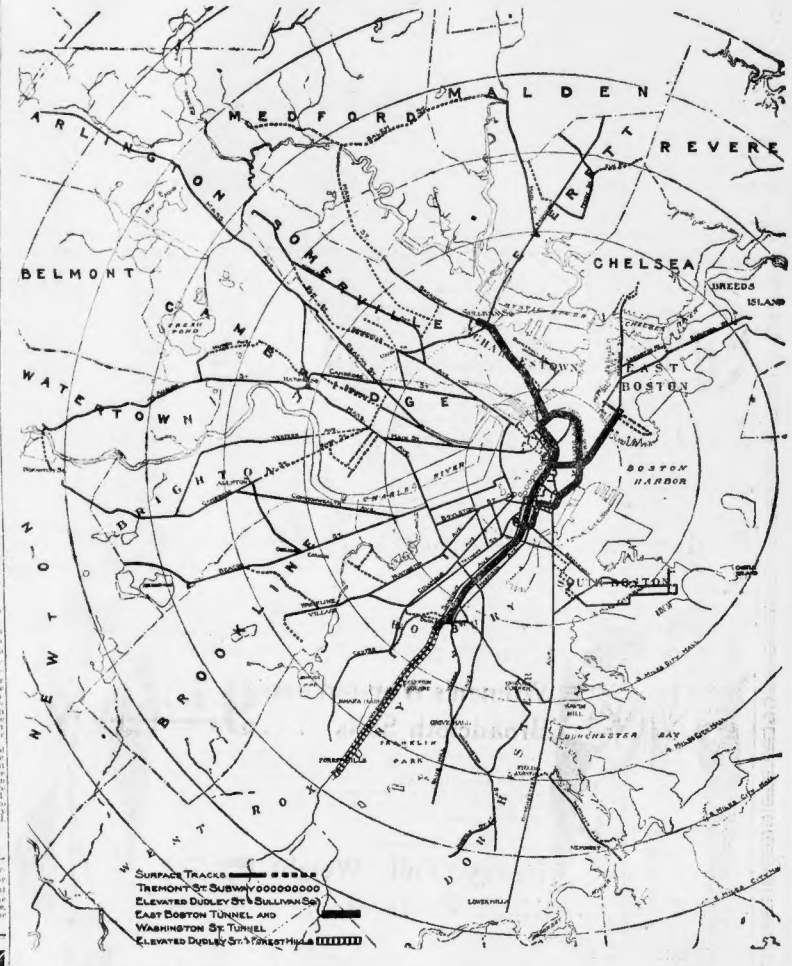
What the Boston Elevated Has Done for Rapid Transit.

Extensions and Additions, Subway, Elevated and Surface, Which It Has Provided

Map No. 5, November, 1909.



From map of Boston and Suburbs. Copyright Geo. H. Walker & Co.—Walker Lith. & Pub. Co.

The Boston Elevated Railway Company is showing the additions and extensions which it has made to its system. On September 28 was shown the surface lines and the Tremont Street subway as in January 1898. This was when the Boston Elevated took charge. On October 3 was shown in addition the original elevated system. On October 5 the East Boston Tunnel. On October 10 the Washington Street Tunnel.

To the above is now added the

Forest Hills Elevated Extension

Eight years ago the residents of West Roxbury paid TWO FARES to reach the down town district.

On July 1st, 1903, the Boston Elevated leased the lines in that section.

Then the fare was REDUCED TO FIVE CENTS.

FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS was immediately spent in double tracking and like improvements.

Shortly after, THREE MILLIONS OF DOLLARS MORE was spent for an elevated extension.

This extension was opened for business November 22, 1909.

All this was done in about SIX YEARS' TIME.

INFREQUENT service, mostly on single track, was changed to FREQUENT service on the LONGEST RAPID TRANSIT LINE in Boston.

The running time from Forest Hills to Dudley Street was SIXTEEN MINUTES; now it is EIGHT MINUTES.

The Forest Hills terminal is said to be the most artistic in the country.

It will accommodate eleven hundred and forty cars per hour. It is now used by five hundred and fifty-six.

Building this extension required remodeling and enlarging the DUDLEY STREET STATION.

During alterations the public were discommoded.

The greater capacity now promotes both comfort and convenience.

ONE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED AND FORTY CARS per hour is the enlarged capacity at Dudley Street.

Nine hundred and ninety-eight are using it at present.

More people use this station daily than are carried on the entire Boston & Maine system. And more than use any other steam or street railway station in the world.

AN ASSESSOR UNDER ARREST

Daniel C. Shaughnessey, one of the Board of Assessors of the City of Cambridge, was arrested to-day, charged with the larceny of $172 from five different taxpayers. Following his arrest he was arraigned before Judge Almy, pleaded not guilty to five counts charging him with larceny, and was held in $500 for a hearing next Wednesday.

Shaughnessey was arrested on the complaint of the Cambridge Taxpayers' Association, which body has been investigating affairs at City Hall for some time. They charge that Shaughnessey got the money by securing abatements for taxpayers with whom he split the amount of the abatement.

POWERS SALUTE NEW PORTUGAL

LISBON, Oct. 13.—The German Minister to Portugal, to-day, acting upon instructions from Berlin, took initial steps to enter into unofficial relations with the republican provisional government of Portugal, following the official recognition from Brazil and confirmation by the Swiss government that the Alpine republic is now ready to recognize officially the provisional regime.

According to Minister Francis Villiers of Great Britain, England will recognize the new government as soon as it is convinced that the revolution is practically at an end. The international status of the Portuguese situation was brighter to-day than it has been at any time yet. It is believed that France and Italy and the other important continental powers will lose no time in recognizing the new government, now that England and Germany have indicated the courses which they will pursue, and that the United States will then fall into line.

CARDINAL LOGUE DINED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Cardinal Logue of Ireland was the guest at a private dinner last night at the Westchester Country residence of James Butler, owner of the Empire City race track. A large number of church dignitaries were present.

LILLIAN RUSSELL URGES WOMEN TO FIGHT FOR BALLOT

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—"Woman has forced herself into a position where she has to fight for her rights, and now that she is fighting in organized earnest, why not take the real step—the consummation—of suffrage for women and the abolishment of the male vote."

This is one of the assertions made to-day by Lillian Russell, who takes the stand that the American woman is me getting what is coming to her. In part Miss Russell said:

"Absolute suffrage for women and the withdrawal of the power and the reins of government from man's hands will give the men themselves a fuller opportunity to play the games in which they have been most successful.

VANNUTELLI IN BROOKLYN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Cardinal Vannutelli visited Brooklyn yesterday, and as the guest of Bishop McDonnell was greeted by fully 350,000 CatTolics of the Borough and Long Island.

HUNT PORTLAND GIRL IN BOSTON

The Boston police are searching for 12-year old Annie Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kramer of No. 1083½ Congress street, Portland, Me., who is thought to be in this city in company with a flashily dressed woman with whom she was seen in Portland shortly before she disappeared from her home last Monday.

The parents of the girl have received a post-card mailed at Station A, Boston, which contains the message:

"Dear Mother:

"I am in Boston. I will be home Thursday morning. Do not worry.

"From ANNIE."

The card was postmarked at 9 a. m. Oct. 11.

As soon as the message was received the Portland police were notified and immediately forwarded a minute description of the girl, together with a general description of the woman with whom she was seen, to the Boston police.

A general search by special officers was begun to-day through the South End in an endeavor to trace the movements of the missing girl since her arrival in Boston.

SAYS MISSIONARIES ARE MEDIATORS WHO UNTANGLE NATIONS

We are living in a time when the missionary is more needed than ever, for there are thunder clouds all the way along the horizon. Civilization has brought us into new perils. Science has made the world a neighborhood, but she has no power to convert it into a brotherhood. The nations are face to face with one another. No nation can live an isolated life any more. The ends of the earth have been brought together and there is danger of them getting tangled. Commerce has leveled the mountains and banished the sea. The missionary of the twentieth century is the mediator between the East and the West, between the North and the tropics.—John R. Mott, LL. D., to address to Congregationalists.

NEWARK, O., Oct. 14.—A baby weighing two and a quarter pounds was born to-day to Mrs. John Reynolds.

DEDICATE NEW A. O. H. BUILDING

The dedication of the new Emmet building, at No. 652 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, for A. O. H., Divisions 15, 40 and 51, will be held this evening in the new lodge rooms. The program will consist of a banquet at 7:30 o'clock which will be followed by the formal opening and dedication of the magnificent $75,000 structure which is said to be one of the finest buildings of its kind in this part of the country. Speeches will be made by men prominent in political, civil and religious circles.

Among the speakers will be Governor Draper, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressmen Peters, Gallivan and Kelleher, National President James E. Regan of the A. O. H., and Past President Mathew Cummings, members of the City Council, State and county officials of local organizations.

The building will have four large stores, two handsome lodgerooms, with gallery rooms, committee rooms and one of the largest dance halls in New England.

DYNAMITE BANK ESCAPE.

PROCTOR, Col., Oct. 13.—Four masked men, heavily armed, rode into Proctor, shot up the town, dynamited the State Bank and escaped after a running fight with citizens. They got no money.

DOUBLE LEGAL STAMPS FORENOONS

MONEY SPEAKS LOUDER THAN WORDS

A trading stamp, redeemable in money, is incontestably superior to any other stamp proposition. Stamps redeemable in "premiums" confine you to "a list" of articles that some one else chooses to give you, but Legal Stamps are redeemable in good, hard American money. "Legal Stamp premiums" are "any thing that money will buy." A full book is worth 2.00 in cash or 2.50 in any merchandise you may select from the immense Gilchrist stocks.

We Originated 'Friday Specials' in Boston—We're Keeping Them Up With a Vengeance

Friday Specials have been a "pet hobby" of ours from the start. When we inaugurated this end-of-week bargain day in Boston we said that it would offer unmatchable values. We did exactly as we said we would do and it was a success from the beginning and we've never deviated from a single principle that governed that first "Friday Bargain Day." We began the movement. We've led from the start and we still maintain a "big lead" in Friday Value Giving as evidenced by this page of unmatchable bargains.

DEBT TO COLUMBUS IS DEBT TO CHURCH, SAYS ARCHBISHOP

Archbishop O'Connell preached the sermon in connection with the Columbus Day high mass at the Cathedral. The Rt. Rev. Prince Ferdinand de Croy, dean of the church in Belgium and long an attache at the Vatican, was celebrant, having been asked by Cardinal Vannutelli to officiate when the papal legate himself was unable to remain in Boston. In his sermon dealing with the achievements of Columbus, the archbishop spoke in part as follows:

"The long-deferred honor has come at last. A whole people takes a holiday to commemorate the priceless services of the peerless discoverer who first bore across the veil that hid the new world from the old. Church and State unite to do him honor, for the dominion of each upon these shores traces its beginning to his exploit.

"The land which he discovered bears not his name, but a grateful people hails him as the new world's first and greatest benefactor, and proclaims the glory of his genius, while the church lends his name and virtues as those of a docile and devoted son who found his inspiration and strength to suffer, to persevere and to do in the religion which she teaches.

"Mankind loves and honors its heroes. And it has reason to do so. The progress of the race is marked by their achievements and their upward march of humanity is forwarded quite as much, if not more, by the heroes of peace as by those of war.

"And when the dauntless pioneer of a new era in the world's history has, over and above a natural intrepidity of soul, a deep religious faith which was the inspiration of and the sustaining power behind his great achievement, there is an added interest in his personality; then his life and its lessons overleap the boundaries of the merely natural and enter the domain of the spiritual, and church and State harmoniously unite in paying him a tribute of homage.

True to His Name.

"He was true to his name—Christopher, the Christ bearer. He always professed as one of the prime objects of his quest for the distant Orient by way of the western ocean the desire to bring the blessings of Christianity to those unknown peoples, and 'the wealth of Far Cathay was sought not for itself but to redeem the holy sepulchre of Christ.

"It was these two traits of courage and confidence in God, both infinitely entwined and the one deriving sustenance and strength from the other, that sustained him during the long years of disappointment, vexation, reproach and pollution.

"Reduced to beggary for devotion to his ideal, he still traveled from place to place, pleading his cause with simple eloquence and trusting always with a child like confidence in God that his cause would at last triumph.

"That triumph came unexpectedly. Reduced to the last extremity by his fruitless wandering in search of help for his project from the rich and powerful of the world he knocked one night early in the year 1492 at the gate of the Dominican convent La Rabida, begging for food and lodging.

"The pious father, Juan de Perez, happened to overhear the conversation with the porter, and struck by the noble mien of the stranger and sympathizing with his misery, invited him in and listened to his story.

"He became convinced of the truth of Columbus' demonstration and immediately set to work to interest the Duchess Juana de Perez was confessor to Queen Isabella of Spain, and brought the project to the attention of the queen, strongly espousing the cause of Columbus.

Isabella Great in History.

"She had become for all time the type of the truly magnanimous and great woman on who must be placed upon the records of the world's history as the great benefactress of humanity.

"Her act has become an inspiration for women of all future ages in exposing noble causes, and to forward the interests of the kingdom of God upon earth, and to advance humanity's progress.

"The glory of woman has not diminished since the days of Isabella, and the same nobility of heart and generous instincts on the part of the women of today can be powerfully used for the cause of truth and justice and charity.

"Opportunities without number are open to them, and the most truly influence of good women is the haven which the world needs most today to purify and regenerate it, and direct it along the ways of righteousness and faith.

"And when the spirit of fruitlessness has emerged from woman's heart and soul to life, and sapped from out her heart the stimulus for heroic and generous action, the world has been made poorer to a degree that is beyond human computation.

Debt to the Church.

"Yet it was a woman who placed at the disposal of Columbus the means which enabled him to carry out his vast project, the effectuation of which has changed the whole course of human history.

"Rather by faith and Spanish by adoption he rendered to the world a service which it can never repay, and to the church an opportunity for enlarging her dominion over human souls.

"Nor is this any new tax for her. She has accomplished it before. The barbarians of Europe became civilized nations under her inspiration and guidance. She welded together into one christian empire nonwealth the diverse peoples whom she civilized and christianized, and she first taught them the lesson of discipline and obedience and paved their way for their progress in orderly and stable government.

"The ideals which she gave to Columbus, and which called forth his courage and confidence to prosecute his great endeavor, the realization of which was the glory of christ, are still potent and can overcome all obstacles.

GEN. MURRAY CALLS FOR MORE ARTILLERY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Brigadier General Arthur Murray, chief of Coast Artillery, U. S. A., in his annual report to the War Department on the efficiency and progress of the service, strongly advocates the increased defense of artillery troops to man the most defenses of this government. "It is believed to be established beyond dispute," he says, "that in order to insure efficient handling of our coast defenses in times of war it is necessary that we shall maintain in time of peace at least one full manning detail of coast artillery troops."

The report shows that the actual strength of the coast artillery corps on June 30, 1910, was 634 officers and 18,109 enlisted men.

$519.16 IS AWARDED FOR LOSS OF LOVE

READING, Pa., Oct. 13.—Miss Helen Jones, a pretty Quakeress of twenty-six years, of Upper Hilltown, Lehigh County, has been awarded $519.16 damages for breach of promise of marriage. The respondent was Eugene E. Bergey, aged twenty-eight, a rich young farmer of Hereford township, Berks County. Miss Jones sued for $10,000.

ARCHBISHOP GIVES COLUMBIAN GLORY TO ITALY AND SPAIN

Italy and Spain participate in the glory of Columbus' achievement. It is well to recall this fact to-day when other interests prevail for the time in either country. Short-sighted statesmen of the present time ignore the illustrious history of the past, when the countries were in complete submission to the Holy See and seek now to create a prejudice in these countries against ecclesiastics and all that they represent. If in the providence of God, Italy and Spain had their golden age and gave birth to men and women in high latitude and magnificence dazzled the world, nobody but the ignorant or bigoted would stood in place and power, and when calm reflection shall prevail over mind and hearts, how famous it is in these days to try to destroy the progress by presenting the church as the enemy of civilization and progress.

Church the Unifying Power.

"Meanwhile the discovery of Columbus has become the opening of a new epoch. The continent which he discovered has waxed strong and mighty, and has attained to a position of unrivaled power and character of its own. It belongs to no one race.

"In the home of many diverse peoples, who here under different conditions from what prevail in other lands are learning out their destiny. The choicest blood of Europe is mingling and will make blends entirely new in the mold of life and character.

"What power in the world is there that shall unite into one harmonious whole these diverse elements of the great American commonwealth? The one who reads the history of the past, the only institution that is fitted to the doctrines and ideals which she holds forth, for the one unifying principle which alone imposes to do this grand work, is the catholic church.

"Nor is this any new task for her. She has accomplished it before. The barbarians of Europe became united nations under her inspiration and guidance. She welded together into one christian empire nonwealth the diverse peoples whom she civilized and christianized, and she first taught them the lesson of discipline and obedience and paved their way for their progress in orderly and stable government.

"The ideals which she gave to Columbus, and which called forth his courage and confidence to prosecute his great endeavor, the realization of which was the glory of christ, are still potent and can overcome all obstacles.

INSPIRING, SAYS PRESIDENT OF GREAT PARADE

A marching host, 60,000 strong, made Boston's first celebration of Columbus Day one long to be remembered. The parade, reviewed by President Taft, who called the vast body of men a most inspiring sight, Governor Draper, Mayor Fitzgerald, Chief Marshal Colonel John J. Sullivan of the 94th Regiment, was the longest in the history of Boston. Ninety-nine bands made music for the parades route and when the head of the column passed, a mighty shout was witnessed by half a million people.

It was the largest crowd seen in Boston streets in many years, certainly the biggest in twenty years, with the exception of Dewey Day and the G. A. R. encampment parade day of 1904. Police officials say it was the largest mass of people ever packed into so restricted an area in the city.

President With Draper.

President Taft stood in the stand in front of the State House with Governor Draper. One of the President's feet was in a carpet slipper, this foot being lame from a recent minor mishap.

And over the 410th anniversary of the discovery of America and the first observance in Massachusetts of a holiday created by the legislature of the Union.

A gun salute at sunrise officially opened the exercises. In the forenoon there was a solemn pontifical mass at the Cathedral, the cardinal being the celebrant, Prince Ferdinand de Croy of Mons, Belgium, dean of the staff of Cardinal Vannutelli, Archbishop O'Connell preached the sermon. And civic pageant in the afternoon, with its historical floats, was the feature of the day.

The line of march covered a comparatively narrow zone, and involved scarcely any traffic tie-up, so little was affected yet it furnished as vantage points the broad Beacon and Park streets, the Common and Commons, so the sightseers were not crowded in a block.

The parade started from the junction of Beacon and Hereford streets promptly at noon. It passed down Beacon to Arlington, Tremont to Court, Washington to Temple place, to Tremont to Boylston street, and was dissolved on Park square with little confusion as marked the formation.

It was reviewed at four points. The first reviewing stand on Beacon street, near Arlington, was occupied by Archbishop O'Connell, Mgr. Prince Ferdinand de Croy, and other clergymen. President Taft viewed the column with Governor Draper at the State House. Mayor Fitzgerald, wearing a red tie, was in the reviewing stand on Tremont street, and General John J. Sullivan, 9th regiment, M. V. M., who acted as chief marshal, was stationed at Charles and Boylston streets.

Six Main Divisions.

The civilian parades represented Catholic societies of orders. There were six main divisions. The Knights of Columbus turned out so many councils that they had to divide their division, the second into two subdivisions and each of these into two subdivisions, which made up the sixth, or last, main division, there being more than 40 who were split up into eleven subdivisions. Beside the Knights of Columbus Corps, the Marines of the Ninth Regiment and sailors from the warships there were in line. The independent Order of Hibernians, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, Italian and Polish societies.

The three floats which won prizes were:

First prize, $150—Knights of Heath and the Heroes of the Battle of Lexington, contributed by the Daughters of Isabella of Somerville.

Second prize, $100—Columbus flagship Santa Maria, drawn by joint committee of St. John, Santa Maria, Benedict and Immaculate Conception, B. of C.

Third prize, $50—Columbus, imploring Ad. Hunker Hill council, K. of C.

The President remained an hour and a half, leaving at 2 o'clock, when he went to luncheon as the guest of Congressman Gallivan at the Touraine. Practically all the time he was witnessing the parade he had with him moved in salute.

Before leaving the reviewing stand President Taft said:

"It is a most impressive and fitting inauguration of the celebration of the discovery of America. It is an inspiring sight presented by an unusually fine appearing body of men."

BRIDES WAIT WHILE GROOMS HUNT PREACHER

SALEM, Oct. 13.—Two weddings occurred at No. 27 Shore avenue in spite of delay and consternation resulting from the fact that the clergyman first engaged failed to put in his appearance. When things began to look dubious somebody went out and brought in another clergyman, who performed the ceremony that made everybody happy.

The four young people who participated in the double ceremony were Miss Mildred Belle Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Ames of this city, who was married to Justin W. Dowst of Beverly, and Miss Rosale Gordon Rupp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rupp of this city, who became the bride of James W. Foster of Beverly.

Every detail of the double wedding had been carefully planned, and Dr. De-Witt S. Clark, pastor of the Tabernacle Congregational Church, was engaged to perform the ceremony. But as the time for the wedding arrived the clergyman could not be found and soon the hour for the service passed and no minister was on hand. Everybody became intensely nervous and dejected, long soon somebody hurried out and returned with Rev. Alfred Manchester, pastor of the East Unitarian church, and he officiated.

Miss Ames and Mr. Dowst were married first and their vows were exchanged by Miss Rupp and Mr. Foster. When the vows were made Miss Rupp and Mr. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Dowst attended.

BEHOLD THE NEW HOBBLE AND THE SUFFRAGETTE!

A rainy day skirt, a "new hobble" skirt, as it is called by some, and a suffragette skirt are among the new fashions for women, as shown at the annual style display of the United Tailors' Association of America.

This display is in progress on the Belvidere roof of the Hotel Astor in New York.

The rainy day skirt interests the women, especially at this season of approaching Winter. The heavy skirt covers bloomers descending to the shoe tops. The cut is convenient and warm. A cape and hood are shown with the skirt. With the entire costume a woman is protected in any weather short of a blizzard.

The "new hobble" skirt is one of the possibilities of the much-talked-of eight-button dress. The model now shown is made of camel's hair cloth with a wide belt. When the belt is tightened it gives the garment much the appearance of a tight-fitting hobble skirt. The skirt even has a pocket, a wide one near the belt.

The suffragette suit and skirt are of rough gray men's suiting. The creator calls it a divided hobble. In reality the skirt is about the style of big, loose-fitting trousers. They turn up at the bottom of the legs and have two pockets, one on each side, after the masculine fashion.

A Want Advt. is often the road to fortune.

"I admire Hilton Clothes"

CHARLES BIGELOW,

Starring in the latest Broadway success, "ALMA, WHERE DO YOU LIVE?" Weber's Theatre, New York.

A Hilton Model at $12.50

When you think of Charles Bigelow you can't refrain from smiling—his mirth-provoking antics and his witty songs are the talk of Broadway.

Mr. Bigelow has a healthy interest in fine apparel. Hilton Clothes and he are good friends.

He admires them for their refined smartness, their perfect drape, and for the fact that they are READY FOR SERVICE, but do not have the appearance of a ready-made product.

Hilton Clothes are of interest to all discriminating, value-seeking men. Their only competitor in quality is the high-class custom tailor. In cost Hilton Clothes are no higher, if as high, as conventional ready-mades.

SOCIETY LEADERS TARRY FOR AUTUMN AT COUNTRY HOUSES

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

While the town houses are gradually opening and the whole Back Bay section seemingly coming back to life again, there are still many of our fashionables lingering at their Summer estates.

Mrs. Allen Curtis and Miss Evelyn Curtis, who have been in New York for several days, have returned to their estate at Beverly Farms, where they will remain until after Thanksgiving before coming up to their town house on Beacon street.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Loring and Miss Loring, who have been for several weeks on the Maine coast, have returned to their Pride's Crossing estate, where they will remain until late next month, when they will open their town house on Marlboro street.

+ + +

Mrs. John C. Phillips is to remain for the rest of the month at her North Beverly estate, Moraine Farms, before coming up town for a few weeks prior to going on to her home in Washington for the Winter.

+ + +

The George and the William Lowell Putnams are among the late lingerers at Manchester and will not return to town until the first of November. Mrs. James T. Field will also remain at her cottage until that time.

+ + +

Herbert M. Sears and his pretty daughters, Miss Lily and Miss Phyllis, have returned from their trip to New York and are again at their Pride's Crossing villa, Wood Rock, where they will remain until the last of the month when they will open their town house on Commonwealth avenue. Miss Lily Sears is to be among the debutantes of the coming season.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Warren (Helen Thomas), who are at present occupying the Otis Lake cottage, Valleyside, Beverly Farms, will not return to their town house until the first of November. This will be the first Winter for the Warrens in town since their marriage and they will occupy the house Mr. Thomas recently presented to his daughter, corner of Fairfield and Marlboro streets. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas who spent last Winter in New York are to remain at their Pride's Crossing estate, aetherfield, until the first of November.

+ + +

The Nathaniel Thayers, who are still at their Newport villa, owing to the ill health of Mr. Thayer, will go to their Lancaster estate the first of November. The Count and Countess Moltke are at present the guests of the Thayers at their Newport villa and Miss Susan Thayer is visiting there also.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Boardman and Miss Mabel Boardman will remain at their Summer estate in Manchester until the last of the month when they will return to their home in Washington for the Winter.

+ + +

The Frederick Foster Careys of New York, who occupied Lodgehurst, at Manchester, until after Thanksgiving.

+ + +

Dr. and Mrs. John Turner Atterbury and the former's daughter, Miss Katherine Atterbury, are still at the Dark Harbor estate, Dramorgar. No date has yet has been set for the wedding of Miss Atterbury and John A. Tackerman of Red State road and Ipswich whose engagement was announced during the Summer.

+ + +

An interesting wedding was that of Miss Lydia Morton Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Morton Allen of Wilmington, formerly for Medford, and George Morgan Williams of Palo Alto, California. The ceremony took place at noon and was performed by the Rev. W. H. Ormond of Trinity Church, Woburn. The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion with a wealth of greenery making a background for innumerable clusters of white roses. There was no reception. The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for New York and are sailing for England on the Mauretania. After an extended tour of the Continent, Mr. and Mrs. Williams will make their home in the Mesilla Valley, New Mexico, where Mr. Williams has a large estate. Mr. Williams is a graduate of Stanford University, California, and has been studying at Harvard the past year in the social ethics department.

BARNEY SISTERS, WHO FIGURE IN STATUE DISPUTE

MISS BARNEY DENIES BEING NYMPH MODEL

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The American today interviewed Miss Natalie Barney and her mother, Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney, about the new famous statue which rests draped about the coarse cloth on the lawn of the beautiful Barney home in Neuilly-sur-Seine avenue, in Washington, to protect it from the gaze of the curious thousands who believed that Miss Natalie Barney had posed to her sister as model for the piece of sculpture.

Miss Natalie declares that she has posed to her sister, but only for a portrait bust and denies that any part of the much discussed young nymph in marble was sculptured along the lines of her own fair face or graceful form. Also, according to Miss Barney the Washington public is criticising a very beautiful piece of sculpture to which no one knowing anything about art could object.

But farther than that Miss Natalie Barney is very angry that even the suggestion should have been made that a lady on the lawn was a counterpart in marble of herself, and her sister the sculptress, with true artistic discrimination points out the lines of non-resemblance between the undraped marble figure and her sister even as she appears in street clothes.

As for Major Sylvester, the superintendent of police of the capital who ordered the nymph rolling from the sea to be properly clothed against the chill Autumn winds—poof. It simply shows that he is just a policeman with no appreciation of art.

Will his order to drape the statue be obeyed by Mrs. Barney and her daughters? Certainly not. The statue will stay just where it is, and no attention will be paid to the orders of Major Sylvester or any one else so long as the artistic Barneys are satisfied with its merits as an example of classic art. When it becomes public that she had been the model for her talented sister, Miss Natalie said: "I am most indignant that such a tale should have been started about me and my sister, and that the papers should have published it."

"There are three sisters, one who studies religion, Laura, who is a sculptress, and myself, who writes books.

"The statue in question, modeled by my sister, does not represent me, but a well known Parisian model named Mlle. Silvestre.

"The statue was made eight years ago. I had it sent to Washington, and while finishing it in Paris was not to enter the house, as has been reported. Neither thought it would look in the garden.

"All oblige me in contradicting these statements."

STRONG BILLS ARE OFFERED AT THEATRES

"The Lily," at the Hollis, offers a rare opportunity to see exceptional acting.

Burr McIntosh's bonds on interesting as at B. F. Keith's Theatre.

"Girlies" is delighting large audiences at the Boston Theatre.

Barney Gilmore is making good at the Grand Opera House in "Kelly, from the Emerald Isle." The attraction next week will be "The Turning Point."

"The Parisian Widows" are promising gay moments at Waldron's Casino Theatre.

Gertrude Elliott is giving a fine performance in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" at the Shubert.

"The Girl and the Drummer" still reigns again at the Bowdoin Square. It is to be followed next Monday by "The Chocolate Soldier."

"The Fortune Hunter" is playing to large audiences at the Tremont Theatre.

"Girls" is the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre. "The Girls from Happy York" will be given next week.

Vaudeville and moving pictures may be seen twice a day at the Scenic Temple.

"The Redskins" has lost none of its great pulling power at the Columbia.

"The Broadway Society Girls" are operating at Howard this week.

There are many laughs in the Dream Land Burlesquers at the Gaiety Theatre this week.

Marie Dove and "Electricity" still remain but one more week after this at the Boston Theatre.

"Annie Laurie," at the Globe, is a play of delightful simplicity.

"Fads and Follies" is doing lively business at the Gaiety Theatre.

Good vaudeville and pictures make up the programme at the Hub Theatre.

There is variety in the bills at the Bowdoin Square Theatre.

BOSTON CLUB LOSES BOWLING GREEN GAME.

The Boston Bowling Green Club lost the last match of the season, played yesterday afternoon on the green of the Dill River Bowling Green Club, by a score of 87 to 80. W. Jardine, vice president of the Gilchrist company and the champion "skip" of the locals, was unable to play, although he rooted vigorously for victory by his teammates. The Boston bowlers declare that had Mr. Jardine been in the match they would have won. The playing was sharp and spirited, the weather being conducive to good bowling. The game began at 2:30 and lasted until late in the afternoon. In the evening the visitors were given a banquet at Hemlock's in Dorchester. Speeches were made by Mr. Ballentyne and Mr. Pettigrew and by members of the visiting team.

YOUNG WIFE BEGINS SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Mary Edna Martin, nineteen, of Cambridge, is seeking divorce from her husband John Garcie Martin of Somerville, claiming that during the brief time they lived together he treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner. She appeared before Judge Richardson in the Equity Motion Session of the Suffolk Superior Court today, and secured alimony of $5 a week.

LONGWORTH AFTER SEAT IN SENATE

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 13.—Announcement was made here today that Nicholas Longworth will be a candidate for the United States Senate should it appear that Senator Dick will lose out in his fight. Longworth is now making a stumping tour of Ohio. Longworth when here did not commit himself, but it is learned from the highest authority that if Dick is eliminated he will be a candidate against Governor Herrick.

70,000, RECORD CROWD, SEE MECHANICS FAIR

More than 70,000 persons, the largest crowd that was ever assembled in Mechanics Building, attended the Mechanics' Exposition yesterday. The crowd began to gather early, but the big rush came early in the evening at the close of the parade, when visitors came by thousands and besieged every entrance. The exposition everywhere breaks all records for any other exposition ever held in Boston.

SEEK JOHN LAWSON.

Relatives are seeking John Lawson, for overnight at No. 20 Richmond street, Dorchester, who is missing since August 13. His wife and son Harry fear that he has met with a serious accident. With his son he worked as a moulder in the Fore River Engine Works. He has not been in the fellow workman at the corner of Washington street and Broadway Extension on his way home.

STORM WARNING FOR SHIPS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. The following special storm warning was issued by the local weather bureau today: "A tropical storm of considerable intensity is reported southeast of Cuba by the Yucatan Channel. It is moving toward the Gulf of Mexico. Caution is advised for all vessels bound for those waters."

CONGREGATIONALISTS ARGUE THE CENTRALIZATION QUESTION

Dr. George L. Cady of Dorchester Declares the Church Should Be "Presbyterianized."

A warm discussion took place today when the committee of twenty-five, appointed by the Congregational council assembled in Bond Hall, and opened the discussion for centralization in the Congregational Church. Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson presided, and called for the minute addresses from the floor.

Rev. Dr. George L. Cady of Dorchester declared that the Congregational church should be "Presbyterianized." He said: "I am quite confident of the present dangers besetting the Congregational church to-day and of what might be called rebellion against authority. I desire to say that I am an Instrument and I would say, Let us Presbyterianize the Congregational Church, as their church has a central power in its synods."

Urges Centralization.

"Right here in New England we are full of tremendous problems, and not of them is this: That the Presbyterian church is coming to Boston seems to have greater hold of the city than Congregationalism. And the reason for this is there is no central authority in our church to-day. We do want a centralized spirit to make it effective."

Rev. D. P. Bleed of Iowa spoke about the status of the Middle West and the need of taking in more people in the church to-day. "We are the ones who must be in the forefront of twentieth century methods," said Dr. Bleed. "We have heard many eloquent speeches to-day, but we are loading too much around the throne. We ought to be saying more by increasing the efficiency of our methods."

"True Democracy" Plea.

Rev. John L. Kilbon of Springfield declared that there was no democracy in the church of Massachusetts. "We all have somebody else getting ahead of us," declared he. "We must move to true democracy if we want greater efficiency. We must advocate true democracy in the administration of our churches. We must get general interest in our work."

Rev. H. Kady of Iowa declared for the referendum in the church. "We want the referendum in our church, as it will bring enough the very best executive power. We do not want concentration so much as we want democracy."

Rev. W. H. Wooding of Cambridge, Mass., strongly protested against concentration of power in the church council, and explained a bill he had introduced in the House that is becoming in nothing more than locomotive, and that the church is suffering from this now.

Must Have New Creation.

"The congregationalists have been losing and lost much in their aggressiveness," said he. "We must have a new creation in the church. I believe and hope in a democratic church. I believe that the Congregational church is the best church to be found in this country."

At this juncture, and as the hour grew warmer, Rev. Dr. Simpson made a motion that the meeting adjourn, which was unanimously carried by the delegates.

Today's proceedings of the Council in Bond Temple were opened at 10 o'clock with addresses from missionaries from Japan and Turkey. Dr. Pierson, Rev. Yamaguchi Harada, of Kyoto read a letter from the Emperor of Japan to the Congregational Church.

The Women's Missionary Organization met in Pilgrim Hall today and elected officers.

CHINESE WITNESS ON TRIAL FOR PERJURY

In Suey Kee, a Chinese witness at the trial of Captain Beaubien and two other officers of the Saxonia who were charged with aiding Chinese to land illegally in this country, went on trial to-day for perjury. He was furnished counsel by the Government. A. A. Lang, a West Indies ex-Governor being the appointee. The principal witness against Kee was U. S. Commissioner Hayes. Assistant United States District Attorney William H. Lewis appeared for the Government.

CHURCHMEN AT THE BOSTON CITY CLUB

For the first time in its history the Boston City Club threw open its doors to-night to a distinctly religious organization. The occasion will be the dinner given by the club to the members of the visiting convention of the National Council of the Congregational Church. Following the dinner the Rev. Dr. Amos H. Smith of Chicago will deliver an address on "American Influence in China." Professor Graham Taylor of Hartford will preside at the meeting, while the president of the club, Charles S. Ellis, will preside at the dinner. The Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus will become of the speakers.

Miss Natalie C. Barney, in upper picture, and her sister, Miss Laura E. Barney, below.

THE GREATEST RAINCOAT
PURCHASE EVER
MADE IN BOSTON
FOLLOWED TOMORROW (FRIDAY) AND SATURDAY BY THE Greatest Raincoat Sale Ever Known

Forced out of their prominent location at the corner of Washington and Franklin streets by a new lessee, the managers of the National Raincoat House made every effort to close out their stock of Priestley Cravenette Overcoats, English Slip-Ons and Silk Rubberized Raincoats for men, women and children.

But the task was too big. Their extensive advertising campaign worked wonders—thousands of people flocked to the store—attracted by the unheard-of values.

A few days ago the National Raincoat House were forced to close the doors—having about 12,500 garments left, and also the factory lots delayed by the great Garment Makers' strike in New York, embracing the finest garments ever offered to the public.

We made them a ridiculous cash offer. It was accepted—an offer so low that it will enable us to sell standard garments for the next few days at less than one-half the cost to manufacture.

We have moved the entire stock to our big store—127 Tremont St.—and the sale is on tomorrow and Saturday.

This Home-Made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You

Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply At Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes a pint—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of Pinex in treating asthma, bronchitis, and other throat troubles, so long, etc. There is nothing better.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated form of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends by the thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HARVARD ELEVEN HAS SLUMP ON EVE OF AMHERST GAME

HARVARD TAKES SLUMP ON EVE OF BIG GAME

By E. V. B. PAPKE.

You should see a page at the Harvard football practice session at the Stadium. Despite the optimistic statements issued afternoon with the story of defeat, there is no disguising the fact that the Crimson eleven is in the throes of a slump, and that the Amherst game which is now only two days away, looms as a big task for the Harvard machine.

Coach Haughton and his assistants have been working hard to overcome the defects which have developed in the Crimson machine, but as yet no remedy has been found, and the team is suffering from a slump that is as much a mystery to the coaches as it is to the players themselves. OLDRING WRENCHES LEG; MAY NOT BE IN WORLD'S SERIES

Mutt and Jeff Take a Quick Peek at Their Creator — By "Bud" Fisher

OLDRING HURT; MAY NOT PLAY IN BIG SERIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Center-fielder Oldring of the Philadelphia Americans may not be able to play in the world's series. He had the misfortune to sprain his knee severely in Tuesday's game with the A's. It is 50-50 as to whether Oldring will be able to play. If he does play he will be crippled badly and assuredly will not be the star he was in the two series.

His knee was rubbed by the baseball specialists who were called to said that they could not say whether the injury would prevent him from playing next week.

Oldring is a valuable man to the Athletics, and from the stands it looks as though he will be out of the world's series. Connie Mack and his men

All the fans who saw the game yesterday say that Tyler was not against the Athletics in yesterday's game, the second meeting of the All-Stars and the Athletics. It reached town early in the morning with a patched up automobile and went right to work to show up the champions, and he never before showed such form as he did today.

In the fifth inning, with two on and two out, Oldring was up to bat. He hit the ball for a second base hit, scoring two runs. In the eighth inning he hit another safe one, and scored on Barry's single. Then he was forced out at second by Collins, Oldring limping badly as he ran to the bag.

Shortly after Oldring was injured Strunk, who was covering centre field in place of Oldring, made a wonderful one-handed catch of Lord's drive, and in the ninth inning Strunk caught a fly ball, retiring the side. Both of these catches had the ball of Davis's part of the ball cleanly and made a short circuit. Pitcher Bender was the only Athletic pitcher who was not touched for a hit by the All-Stars.

There was a great rush for tickets for the game here, but it is said that only a few have been bought. Reports are that the Athletics' players, in closed session, decided to give the public a chance. They declared that Barry would surely hold his own in the world's series. Barry, one of the Athletic players, is classed as one of the greatest players in the game. They declared that he is without a weakness in fielding lines, that there is no ball he cannot get on either side of his position with equal ease, and that he can go back or come down on a ball with equal facility.

They admitted, of course, that Tinker is a batsman to be dreaded. But they made no claim that when Barry hit it was in the position, as a rule, when a hit was made, to be especially favorable for players on the left field corner, toward which Barry hits.

They think he will be the dark horse of the series.

But the fans will have to be shown how overwhelming a favorite that the Athletics are before they will be willing to put up a big bet.

CHAPTER XX.—(Continued)

MERKLE entered, with an inquiring gone at Tom. "What's the matter?"

Tom extended the paper, pointing to the paragraph concerning Belknap.

"Miss. Belknap," he explained, "has just asked me about this. She wanted to know what it meant, and I had to tell her I didn't know. Refers to her father, doesn't it?" He looked at Merkle anxiously.

"Yes," said Berkie. "He's putting a bill through the Council giving that property at the foot of Main street to the railroad for their new station. And he's attorney for the road."

"Well?" said Tom.

"It doesn't go with his position as president of the Council," continued Merkle. "It'll make a good story."

"You mustn't run it!" Tom was positive.

"Why?" demanded Merkle, in astonishment.

"It will just about ruin him in this town.

"It's coming to him, isn't it?"

"I Can't Stand for This"

"I don't think so," said Tom. "He probably considers the new station a good investment for the village. It's merely a point of view. I suggest calling on him. When he hears our side of it, he may change his mind."

"Of course he will, when he finds that we have it on him," Merkle chuckled.

"Will you let me try?" asked Tom, eagerly.

"It's news now," objected Merkle. "If you think Joe'll be after he changes his mind. The story will double our circulation."

"I'm sorry, old man," said Tom. "I never expected to oppose you in anything but I can't stand for this."

"We'd better put it to a two-thirds vote," said Merkle, dryly.

"Come here, Joe, we need you," he called. "The kid doesn't want to run our story," he said as Weinstein entered.

"What?" asked Weinstein.

"That's right," said Tom. "I'll have to lay down on this."

CHAPTER XXI.

"BUT he ain't no friend of yours," protested Weinstein. "Look at the rotten deal he handed you in New York."

"All the more reason why we must be just with him now," said Tom.

"It's up to you, Joe," prompted Merkle. "I say go through with it," said Weinstein. "We're not running a Sunday school sheet. We came up here for the dough."

"Two to one," said Merkle."

Tom turned away. "I'm sorry, boys, said Mrs. Wilson, complainingly.

She looked at Merkle, but his back was toward her, and he failed to catch the whitening given. "I know they were all your friends, but I made them welcome here because you said they were. I suspected that they were having a cod influence over you. Now, I'm sure of it."

Merkle gave no sign, but Tom quickly came to his defense.

"I'm sorry you said that, mother. They've been the best friends a boy ever had, especially Merkle. He saved me from doing the most cowardly thing a man can do. If it hadn't been for him I wouldn't be here now. I wouldn't be anywhere."

"Tom!" cried his mother, catching him in her arms and holding him close.

"Yes, mother," he said, "as bad as that." "I didn't mean what I said. Forgive me," she sobbed.

"That's all right, dear," said Tom, gently. "I wanted you to know, that's all."

Mr. Belknap Enters

Slowly Mrs. Wilson disengaged her boy and more slowly still she walked over to Merkle, who still stood looking toward the door.

Mr. Merkle," she said.

"Yes, mother." He used the name that Tom used. He had come to regard her as his own mother, too, and he had been glad he cared to own.

Will you—will you let me kiss you?" she faltered. He took her in his strong arms.

"In a minute!" he cried, and once more there was peace and happiness in the house of Wilson.

"And now explain it to Jane," Tom reminded his mother.

"Jane!" she said. "I'd forgotten!" She made a hasty exit through the kitchen door. Merkle, too, turned to go.

"I guess I'll have another talk with Joe," explained. At the doorway he paused by the cause of all the trouble. Mr. Belknap, who had entered the ceremony of a knock.

"I thought I'd find Jane here," said Belknap with a chilly bow to Merkle. "I was given him a polite good-evening. "I offered your message, Mr. Merkle, but that isn't why I'm here."

"I had better talk with the kid. See you later, son," Merkle whisked himself out of the door.

"Jane is inside with mother," said Tom. "I'll tell her." He started toward the door.

"By the way, Mr. Belknap," he added, with a sudden idea, "you offered me a job once. Is that offer still open?"

"What's your idea of humor, I suppose?" returned Belknap, wrathfully.

"No, sir," replied Tom. "I'm in earnest. I severed my connection with the Herald and I'm anxious to begin at something else."

Belknap chuckled. "So your paper isn't the success you've tried to make it—"

"On the contrary," retorted Tom. "It has exceeded our expectations. But my plans and I can't agree on policy. I want something to do, and I'm willing to start at the bottom. Will you take me?"

"I offered you five dollars a week—if I remember," said Belknap.

"I can't do to start with."

Belknap stared in amusement. "You have undergone a radical change," he sniffed, "but I don't think we could get together."

"Just as you think best, of course," said Tom.

"Why, I didn't know you were here, Jane!" Jane burst through the door, her hair swinging in her head in the disorder that had been so lately tied in a tight becoming bow under her chin.

"I had come over to prevent you from doing anything foolish on my account," Belknap's old-time pomposity had returned.

"I don't have to think it over. If this is to be your policy I'm through."

"Too bad," said Merkle. "What do you think, Joe?"

"I need some excitement," said Joe, disgustedly. "Let's go down and see the show that's coming in." He strode to the door. Merkle followed him, but stopped on the threshold at the sound of Mrs. Wilson's voice. Weinstein continued toward the waiting train.

"I've Withdrawn"

Mrs. Wilson came bustling through the door.

"You couldn't do a thing like that, Tom," she chattered. "I told Jane that it was a mistake, and that you'd say so in the next issue."

"It's not a mistake, mother?" said Tom, and the boys won't say that it is."

"The paper is yours, isn't it?" Mrs. Wilson drew herself a pace her full five feet and looked proudly at her son.

"I've withdrawn."

"Well, of all the——. Her wrath prevented her from finishing the sentence.

"You mustn't blame them, mother," said Tom, quickly. "They must protect their interests in their own way."

"It's just what I thought all along," said Mrs. Wilson, complainingly.

She looked at Merkle, but his back was toward her, and he failed to catch the whitening given. "I know they were all your friends, but I made them welcome here because you said they were. I suspected that they were having a cod influence over you. Now, I'm sure of it."

"What have you been talking about?" asked the girl.

"Nothing of any consequence," returned her father. "Are you ready to go?"

"You are discussing that silly paragraph," she ventured.

"Never mentioned it," said Belknap. "But your young friend here seems to think I ought to feel grateful to him."

"So do I," she said to Tom's stupefaction and her father's astonishment.

"What?" cried Belknap.

"He has sacrificed his personal interests rather than stand by you," she said, with a look in her eyes that Tom had not seen for more than four months.

"That lets us," interrupted Tom.

"Yes, it is!" insisted Jane. "Your mother told me all about it."

"I wish you wouldn't say anything now."

"He ought to know about it," she said to her father. "Now, Dad, I want to know what you are going to do."

"I don't intend doing anything," said Belknap, stubbornly. "It merely shows that he hasn't the courage of his convictions."

"I think it shows force of character," said Jane, stealing another glance at Tom.

"I don't want to argue with you, Jane," her father announced. "But if he possessed any character he would never have returned here—a failure."

The Cleverness of Women

"He hasn't failed!" Jane cried, hotly. "He has succeeded in finding out what he wanted to do, and he has come back to do it."

"You remember what he did in the city," Belknap reminded her.

"But I'll do some with every boy who goes to a large city?" she returned. "Besides, we are responsible for that. We knew the temptations waiting for him there, and insisted on his going."

Tom's face was a study. He walked up to Jane and looked into her eyes.

"Do you mean to say," he demanded, "that when you advised me to go to New York you knew what I was going up against?"

"Of course," she replied. "I wanted you to get it out of your system."

"What do you know about that?" said Tom, turning to Belknap. "Isn't it wonderful how clever women are about these things? Neither of us could have thought of such an idea, could we?"

"No," said Belknap, grimly. "It's too big for us. You say you are willing to start for $5 a week?" he added, as Merkle strode into the room, with the air of one bringing news.

"I am. Yes, sir." Tom was sure of himself now.

"Hold on, son," cied Merkle, joining them. "I've read it with Joe."

"How?" Tom looked up in surprise.

"He's homesick, and he's willing to take that four hundred and anything else we care to promise him—and quit. I told him I thought you'd agree."

"What about this other matter?" asked Tom, doubtfully.

"I've thought that over, too," said Merkle. "Perhaps, as you said, we might persuade Mr. Belknap to see the light. Would you mind stepping to here for a minute?" he asked Belknap.

"Don't be stubborn, Dad," said Jane, as her father hesitated. He looked quickly from her to Tom, and then slowly followed Merkle out of the room.

Tom stood looking at Jane. At last he said:

"Has had a complaint about our issue, too?"

"What was that?"

"He said that we forgot to announce your engagement."

She studied the floor, blushing.

"I think you'd better keep right on forgetting about that," she murmured.

"Why, Tom, you haven't had your pipe," Mrs. Wilson came bursting into the room like a big bee. "Set right down and I'll get you something to eat and a fill it."

"Didn't you bring any for Jane?" asked Tom.

"I didn't know she like it. I'll get another piece." Out she bustled once more.

"Do you like huckleberry pie?" asked Tom, turning to the girl at his side.

"Sometimes," she said.

"Let's share the pie if yours comes."

"But it's such a little piece," she said.

"I've found that the little things count," he returned. Their eyes met, and he gathered her to his arms.

The firm of Merkle & Wilson are still publishing the Fairview Herald with great success.

Once or twice they have stepped on the toes of the father-in-law of the junior partner and business manager, Mr. Thomas Wilson. Belknap has shouted "Ouch!" at the top of his lungs but he has generally seen the light and adopted methods a little more public spirited.

It was Merkle who suggested that he give up his railroad practice, and who is now agreed to put him as a candidate for congress.

Belknap made it—congress—yet; but his latest day record is good and rising, and he has high hopes.

One day Merkle tossed his pencil over to Tom, observing, "Edit her till I get back, son."

Tom wondered, but he asked no questions, and only a month later, when Merkle came back with the girl he had left behind him, did he understand.

Visit with Weinstein

Now and then Tom and Mrs. Tom, or Merkle and Mrs. Merkle, go down to New York, and they always take dinner with one J. Archibald Weinstein, who has a whole string of moving picture shows, and is reputed to be making money so fast that Klaw & Erlanger are thinking of going into partnership.

Mrs. Bannon doesn't keep a boarding house any more. She, now Mrs. Leitz, and her husband are doing light housekeeping on the proceeds of the barney business, which, under Mr. Leitz's guidance, is prospering as it never prospered before.

As for Amy Le Roy—well, she is a very popular star, with hosts of admirers and, a dressing and a private car to travel about in.

But whenever she goes through Fairview on tour she pulls down the curtains and affects a severe headache.

Sometimes I think even the great Miss Le Roy sighs not a little for the past, and for the Country Boy.

The rate of discount of the Bank of England, remains unchanged at 4 per cent.

But while on the surface everything appears to be all serene, it is one part of prudence to look out for signals. Conservatism is a good thing, and while it may prevent a man from making a killing in the market at times, it saves him a lot of money in the end. This is something

Call money is showing a disposition to advance, but this is not regarded as anything out of the way at this season of the year. It would be strange indeed, if it did not go much higher, but in the absence of excited speculation in the stock market there is no danger that the banks will be menaced at this time by any situation in their own hands and can call loans when they like. There is every broadening in the trading if they do not want it.

$ $ $

Wall street pays its game a good deal on the chart principle and pays second to nothing to predict what is going to happen. It believes in October as a fine month on the bull side because it is a month in which loans and expansion in a business way. Even in 1907, when everything was almost as gloomy as it could be stock marketwise, the first of the country's largest was good and the railroads made record earnings. Business was actually too enough, but the money situation was bad.

President Schwab of Bethlehem Steel Company says: "The steel business is very dull. Conditions are worse than at any time since I took hold of Bethlehem Steel. While we are running our plants only about 50 per cent. of the regular force still we are getting no new business. The slump is due to the political agitation through out the country."

Action of Missouri Pacific in the market is attracting some attention in view of the large increase of gross earnings of the company. Missouri Pacific is a high line, and all it ever needed was good management, a good roadbed and good rolling stock. It is getting all of these now under the terms of the deal through which it secured new capital. Its operating economies have grown in excess of its increase in gross, but that is due to the fact that it is making so many improvements. Dividend talk is premature, but the stock of the company is worth intrinsically much more than it was a year ago.

$ $ $

International Harvester has become the leader of the speculative. Movements in this stock are easily understood, for they are based upon the world's increasing commercial community. The prosperity of this company is such that the whole country can view with satisfaction, because its continued growth can only mean that the farmers are buying more machinery to increase their harvests.

Union Pacific's strength reflects the faith of its insiders that the litigation resumed in the United States courts as to the future result in victory for the road. The government rests its charges of competition between the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific chiefly on the fact that before the Union Pacific acquired the Southern Pacific and, through that, the Central Pacific, there was competition at San Francisco. The Government alleges that the Union Pacific, which quits at Ogden, kept competing traffic over its Oregon Short Line to Portland and then south over the Southern Pacific line to where they met at San Francisco. Since the acquisition of the Southern Pacific such traffic apparently was routed east to San Francisco over the Central Pacific. The Union Pacific contention is that the old competition was not parallel and competing because the San Francisco end of the so-called thick book was made up of Southern Pacific tracks. Union Pacific naturally has rail entrance into San Francisco at all times. The Government case looks weak.

The wonderful increase in the business of the electrical companies of the United States and the railroads are also doing a great deal in the way of electrification, has stimulated the copper industry in general. The latter, together with the enhancement in the price of the precious metal from the increased production of the mines of the country, bids fair to cause a good rise in the prices of the metal and a benefit to copper stocks.

The Street is coming to see what the dominant interests desire upon, and in the mean time prices are hardening. What trend is discernible is upward. For the present it is not disposed to be convinced, and continues to hang back. It wants to be shown.

STEAMER DISABLES BOSTON SCHOONER

VINEYARD HAVEN, Oct. 13.—The Boston schooner Helen Montague, with her jibboom, bowsprit and headgear missing, has been towed in here by the British steamer San Jose, with which the Montague has been in collision when about a mile and a half west by north from Handkerchief lightship. The Helen Montague was bound from Philadelphia for Calais, Me., with 600 tons of coal, under command of Capt. Ingalls. The San Jose was bound for New York from Boston. The steamer stood by the disabled schooner until daylight and then took her in tow and brought her to this port.

EXPLOSION IN WEST SOMERVILLE SEWER

Three manhole coverings on Broadway, between Chandler and Paulina streets, West Somerville, were blown into the air yesterday, causing much excitement. Three successive explosions shook the houses. An investigation was conducted by the officials of the gas and electric light companies to place the cause. One man said the explosions were due to sewer gas becoming ignited from sparks from an electric light wire. There was no damage.

THE EDISON ELECTRIC ILLUMINATING COMPANY OF BOSTON

DIVIDEND NO. 85

A quarterly dividend of three (3) per cent. has been declared payable November 1st, 1910, to stockholders of record at the close of business October 15th, 1910.

Boston, October 10th, 1910.

EVERY STOCK SHOWS GAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Led by steel common which opened at 71¾, a gain of nearly a half point over the close of Tuesday, the stock market to-day ruled strong and active with practically every stock quoting substantial gains. During the first fifteen minutes of trading 8,000 shares of steel were disposed of at 71¾. Little active selling in this stock brought the price to 72. Trading continued brisk in this stock throughout the early part of the day.

The standard railroad stocks were strong all being traded in freely. New York Central, Union Pacific, southern Pacific and Northern Pacific were the strong features of this group. Northern Pacific selling excitedly up upward at 119¾ and after a few minutes rose a quarter of a point. The copper stocks were strong with Amalgamated, Utah leading.

The former quoted a gain of nearly half a point at the opening. Despite the price advance every report issued by the Western Union, that stock showed no signs of activity, its price was practically unchanged over the course. Another feature was the feature among the high-priced industrials, gaining a point.

American stocks were strong in London, substantial gains being quoted in the early issues.

ELEVATED TO MONSIGNOR.

ELDER PRAISES FISHERY RULING

That the Hague Arbitration Court in the fisheries case, of which he was a member, laid down permanent legislation for the solution of Samuel J. Elder, who has just returned to Boston, having arrived on the Zeeland, from Liverpool after an absence of five months.

"The United States won five of the seven questions," said Mr. Elder, "and there is every reason to believe this tribunal has laid down legislation that will seldom, if ever, require arbitration. The country has won about everything that means dollars and cents in its sixth fisheries. Great Britain's sovereignty on treaty waters and her attitude on keep being reclaimed.

"There are no material changes resulting from the outcome, and the future is provided forever. Future differences will be published in official gazettes, and if the United States, within a period of two months, objects, the matter will go before experts constituted to pass on them.

Mr. Elder, since the session, visited the Passion Play, and in Switzerland met his daughters, Margaret Frances and Ruth, who accompanied him on the Zeeland.

C. GILBERT DEAD; OPERA PLANS UPSET

The sudden death in New York of Charles Gilbert, the French opera baritone, compels alterations in the arrangements of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with whom he was to have sung in this city and Cambridge next week, and forces the opera management to look anew for a singer to take his role in the new Special opera, "The Girl of the Golden West." Mr. Gilbert suffered from an abscess in the ear. His illness developed suddenly, causing death in a few hours. Mlle. Marianne Flahaut, he is known on the traffic and a life-long friend of Mr. Gilbert, was with him when he died. His wife, in Paris, was notified by cable.

CROWD AT THEATRE ENTERS BY STAGE

Nearly a thousand of the eighteen hundred persons who attended yesterday's matinee at the Colonial Theatre had to enter by way of the stage door in Van Rensselaer place. The enormous crowd of parade spectators gathered on the sidewalk outside the Boylston street entrance to the playhouse made it almost impossible for anyone to reach the main entrance. Arrangements were made with the police to inform persons wishing to reach the Colonial to enter by way of the stage door. The entire force of stage hands, ushers, etc., pressed into service to form a cordon from the stage entrance to the auditorium. The patrons had to pass across the stage and by the dressing rooms where the members of the Arcadians' company were preparing for the afternoon performance.

JEWS IN YOM KIPPUR FAST

In every Jewish synagogue in Greater Boston solemn ceremonies mark the observance of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. Until the sun sets this evening the Hebrews of both the reformed and orthodox congregations of Boston will do no work until the end of the continuous service of to-day is ended.

The day of atonement was begun by the "Kol Nidre," which is the most beautiful and impressive service in the Hebrew ritual. Many of the faithful were in the synagogue engaged in prayer and reciting psalms this morning, after an all-night service, ready for the services, which are continuous, beginning early in the morning and lasting until sunset, when the worshippers at the sound of the shofar are permitted to break their fast.

BURGLARS IN AUTO BLOW UP A SAFE

CORTLAND, N. Y., Oct. 13. Three men with an automobile blew open the supposedly burglar-proof safe in Mulford Sons' private bank at Marathon and escaped with $2,000. They used nitro glycerine. After the bank was robbed similarly of $2,000 two years ago a "burglar-proof" vault was installed. Following the explosion three men were seen running to an automobile.

USMC

THE lap-stone, awl and waxed ends of the shoemaker with his moods and his whims have disappeared. Machinery—accurate, rapid, economical—has made the manufacture of shoes one of the most important of the industries of the United States.

It is the simple, natural growth of doing better things in a better way. Man's mastery over machinery is so supreme that its productiveness is marvelous. A single shoe passes through over one hundred and six different hands and sixty machines. This is the "Goodyear Welt" process, universally recognized as the standard method for making high-grade shoes, and exhibited by the United Shoe Machinery Company at the Mechanics Fair, Huntington Avenue, Boston, from now until October 29.

Mortal man has never done the same thing twice in the same way. There is always a variation in physical movement and in the mental process that directs the action. The hand of man is never at the same tension. That which is perfect—doing its work at the same tension and without variation—is a machine. It is without brains—it does not think—it only acts. Perfect machinery in perfect action means a perfect product, but before a machine can exist it must have been conceived. The conception is usually crude and requires the application of many additional minds.

And so it is well that men are not alike—that the hand of one may support another—that the thoughts of one may inspire another—and finally, that all may be brought together and assembled for a service of mutual good, higher efficiency and greater productiveness. It is to such circumstance that all the people who wear shoes made by the "Goodyear Welt System" owe their present comfort and elegance in footwear.

To every man and woman the name "Goodyear Welt" should stand for superior attainment in the making of machinery for the manufacture of shoes. The best shoes are made by this system. The "Goodyear Welt" is a guarantee that the shoes have been soundly, correctly and skilfully constructed on the most modern machinery of the very highest efficiency.

You can see the entire process at the exhibit of the United Shoe Machinery Company at the Mechanics Fair from now until October 29th. A complete shoe manufactory is in full operation. There you can see how and why the "Goodyear Welt System" is the best way to have your shoes made.

A New Incentive to the Conquest of the Air

The combined judgment and enthusiasm of so many of the famous aviators of the world pay tribute to the timeliness and helpfulness of the great prize which Mr. Hearst has offered as a stimulus to further and larger endeavor in this latest and most thrilling of all the progressive arts.

The apathy in America which sent Wilbur Wright to Europe for the exploitation of his wonderful biplane has been quickened into a patriotic activity which finds its culmination in this greatest of prizes for this most majestic of all flights yet taken, or as yet even contemplated, through the air.

The terms, the conditions, the rewards are all approved by the world of science and of sport, and from this day begins a superb and competitive preparation for a transcontinental air flight whose consummation will make history and practicalize aviation for all time.

It is out of this competitive preparation that the first fruits of the Hearst offer will come. The genius and energy of inventors and aviators will be stimulated to the white heat of activity. With a comfortable fortune and enduring fame as the prizes of this transcontinental race, no effort or energy of brain or body will be spared by these brilliant, daring and indomitable air men whose feats have already thrilled the world.

The length of the flight across the continent will imperatively demand an improvement in motors. And, therefore, it is certain that better motors will be made for this and for all succeeding flights.

The demands of the flight will also require stronger parts to endure the stress of storms and the atmosphere. Wherefore this prize will redouble the zeal and activity of inventors to discover and apply other material that combines lightness with strength.

The conditions of the effort will also lay new and deeper demands upon physical courage and endurance and upon intellectual development. And the supply of these splendid qualities, which must rise to meet the new demand, must further invigorate and inspire the race.

The quickened ambition and activity in this department of human endeavor must necessarily be helpful to invention and activity in other lines.

The success of this endeavor will push America once more far in the front of the modern conquests of the air, and with this achievement to standardize aviation, there will be an increased production of airships and of factories for making them—all to the good ends of labor and industry and the pleasure and convenience of the race, to whom nothing will seem impossible.

American Recognition of the New Republic

Our government should not be the last—it should rather be the first—to give official and fraternal recognition to the new Portuguese republic.

The story circulated through the world that our State Department had joined hands with the English and German Cabinets to restore the deposed king to his throne is, of course, absurd.

It is a reproach to us that anybody should think such a falsehood halfway credible or worth the telling.

The idea that America could possibly use its forces to rebuild a ruined monarchy or crush the upspringing hope of a free state gets its currency in Europe because Europe does not understand us.

And the misunderstanding is due in part at least to misrepresentation by Americans in Europe who win dukedoms, degrees, decorations and dinners by the renunciation of every American state of mind.

How can Europe realize the instinctive sympathy felt for the Portuguese republic at every fireside and in every field and workshop in the United States?

Has not an American ex-President stood in the Guildhall of London and cried out passionate praises of absolutism in Egypt?

And are there not apostate Americans, resident in every European capital, who declare that democracy is a failure?

These things are bewildering to Europeans.

There is no doubt that the mass of Americans—preoccupied as they are with their own affairs—have at least a thought of delight and a silent cheer for the successful revolutionists of Lisbon.

We have no sullen grudge against this belated little King Manuel—lagging superfluous, not exactly on the stage, but at the stage door—no desire to have him hurt.

But, whatever may be the mental complications of exceptional Americans like Mr. Roosevelt, most of us understand that the rule of kings—whether it be hard or soft—is flatly irrational.

We understand that the rule of the people means the rule of such common sense as happens to be extant.

And we are for it—without doubt or equivocation.

We are for it—here in America and everywhere else.

The American is sure that it represents the American people in asking the government at Washington to give formal diplomatic recognition to the new republic—just as soon as the people of Portugal have completed the demonstration of their resolve to be self-governing.

The pretense that public order or the security of foreign investments requires the restoration of the Portuguese monarchy will not be listened to with any patience in this country.

Americans regard the movement for self-government in Portugal as they do the Nationalist movement in Iceland or in Egypt.

It is worth the blood it has cost.

It is not to be turned back by the protests of bankers or the conspiracy of kings.

Of the Portuguese people it is to be said, as it has been said of the oppressed people of Egypt:

"They are struggling for independence and for a government of themselves, for themselves and by themselves.

"There have been acts of violence which, of course, the wiser and abler among them deeply deplore.

"There were acts of violence on the part of the Americans in their struggle for independence."

The EVENING AMERICAN guarantees to advertisers the largest circulation by far of any daily newspaper in Boston and over 200,000 more than the next highest evening paper, and over 75,000 more than all the other Boston evening newspapers combined. Circulation books open to all.

Children's Crusade

By THOMAS TAPPER

CRUSADE: A journey to the Holy Land in defense of the Faith.

I.

"BOYS, name your drinks."

With one exception they comply. He does not drink and the others, good-naturedly banter him by ridiculing his virtue.

The high balls and fizzes and cocktails are brought in.

"Waiter," called the spokesman, "bring Mother's Boy a glass of warm milk and a little biscuit."

Great applause from behind the high balls, the fizzes and the cocktails.

II.

THE boys' band consisted of ten pieces.

The Boy, aged thirteen, was the drummer.

One Summer the members went from their Wisconsin town to the banks of the Mississippi on a camping trip.

It was the boy's first absence from home. As his mother kissed him goodby she said:

"Promise me you will neither drink liquor nor go in swimming."

Now, we not infrequently hear upon mothers who extract such promises from boys as measures to their liberty and happiness; we think of them as women who are tickled to death to hand out to a boy going on a picnic a package of restrictive tidbits, one to be taken every time he wants to have a good time.

Well—The Boy promised.

Arrived in camp, and everything made ship-shape for the week's holiday, the leader of the expedition sent The Boy and four others off in a flat bottom boat to get minnows for bait. They rowed out a mile or so on the river and grounded the boat on a sand-bar.

One after another the boys undressed and, jumping into the water, attempted to push the boat off. Finally, with no one left in the boat but The Boy, they succeeded.

Now, being in the water and the boat trouble over, they were eager for a swim.

They sported about the sand-bar for a while, then they swam off into deeper water, from deeper water into the quicker current, and still further away, until in one sudden, panic-stricken moment they felt the pull of a whirlpool and all four disappeared.

Four boys gone to destruction.

One leader on shore waiting for minnow bait.

Four families unaware of the tragedy.

III.

THE Boy rowed the flat-bottomed boat back to shore, ran to camp and told his story in such intensity of terror and emotion that blood flowed from his mouth.

The leader went for the whiskey bottle to revive The Boy, but he, you remember, had left a promise back in a little Wisconsin home, and when the man brought the liquor to his lips he pushed it aside.

IV.

THIRTEEN years before this stirring event The Boy's father, a confirmed drunkard, left home, saying he would never return until he had conquered his thirst for drink.

His wife and little ones never saw him again.

Incident to this resolve there fell upon the woman the task of providing the necessities of life for the children and herself. She attempted to do this by keeping a small store, in the work of which the children helped as they grew older.

One day the mother stood behind the counter as The Boy came in. The rumor had reached her that when he had returned to camp after the drowning accident it had been possible to revive him only by means of whiskey.

She called The Boy to her and said to him:

"I want you to know that I do not consider you broke your promise to me when you had to take whiskey after what happened out on the river. I know you couldn't help it. But will you promise me never to take liquor of your own accord?"

"Mother, the man didn't make me take any whiskey. I pushed it out of his hand before it got into my mouth."

The cloud of thirteen years and of many years before that was swept from the mother's face, and a radiance came there, the beauty of which almost frightened The Boy.

She stretched forth her arms over the polished wooden counter, pulled him to her and dropped to her knees, still clasping him close.

V.

"BOYS, name your drinks."

"Waiter, bring Mother's Boy here a glass of warm milk and a little biscuit."

"Haw! Haw! Haw!" from behind the high balls, the fizzes and the cocktails.

VI.

NOW a crusade is a journey to the Holy Land (to the Holy Land of a man's mind and memory and loved ones) in defense of the Faith.

Little Bobbie

He Writes About Sons of the Republic

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WELL, sed Ma, I see that another Kink has went wrong. The last two years has been hard for kinks, Ma sed. There was the kink of Denmark, for instanse, which beleeved in Doctor Cook, & the poor old Kink of Bombiloo, which was cooked by his subjecks. Now I see the Kink of Portugal has went South.

Yes, sed Pa, it has been a bad time for kinks. Last nite I had three kinks beeten three times. I am not sorry for that Kink Manuel, sed Pa, he jest got what was coming to him. He monkeyed around looking at the lotto lists, & finally he got what was coming to him.

Ma looked at Pa kind of funny. Tell me, Ma sed, where were you all day?

Well, sed Pa, I will tell you where I have been. I have been at a meeting of the Sons of the Free Republic. It was held down in Hotel Haly, Pa sed, & we drank enuff red ink to make us look like a lot of book keepers. Some of them is coming up to the house tonite, Pa sed, & we are all going into the library & tell about the grate growth of freedom. I wrote a littel batiel song for them, sed Pa, & this is the way it goes:

We are not Kinks, we are not Earls.

But we don't flirt with Dancing Girls.

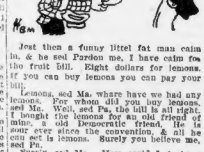
That is as much of the song as I have wrote, sed Pa, but the Sons of the Free Republic tould me that they thought it was fine as far as I had went. They are a fine lot of men, sed Pa, they beleeve in everything that stands for freedom. They will be here any minnit, sed Pa.

Jest then the bell rang, & Ma went to the door. A man calm in & he had a bill in his hand. I am Tony the dreamb, the man sed, I wants give yure husband this I. O. U. Its goin from me two dollar two week ago sed Tony.

It was kind of red in the face. Oh, how are you, Tony, Pa sed. Here is that two dollars that you gave me to keep for you the night that you were under the weather.

I was not under the weather, sed Tony. That a night I have jest gotta my pay, and you asks me for two dollar. I give it to you, not a cent. You no sends the mon back to me. I wants the mon.

Then Pa got redder in the face. He gaiv Tony the 2 dollars, & then Tony went awar, & jest wen Ma was going to skol Pa for borrowing munny from people, the door bell rang agsen, & in calm a other man. Aha, sed Pa, here cums one of the Sons of the Free Republic.



Jest then a funny littel fat man calm in, & he sed Pardon me, I have calm for the fruit bill. Eight dollars for lemons. If you can buy lemons you can pay your bill.

Lemons, sed Ma, where have we had any lemons. For whom did you buy lemons, sed Ma. Well, sed Pa, the bill is all right. I bought the lemons for an old friend of mine, an old Democratic friend. He is sour ever since the convention, & all he can get is lemons. Surely you believe me, sed Pa.

Surely, sed Ma. How could I doubt a Son of the Free Republic?

Logical Mother Goose

By WEX JONES

AS a great educator has remarked, children are taught without proper attention to logic. It does not develop the reasoning power of an infant to let it repeat by rote—

Jack and Jill went up the hill
To fetch a pail of water;
Jack fell down and broke his crown,
And Jill came tumbling after.

There is no lesson in this for the child; indeed, the lines are likely to arouse a misplaced sympathy. It should be pointed out that Jack, if he had not been a shiftless character, would have cut a channel so that the water would have run downhill to his house, and thus saved him the labor of climbing up and down. As it was, Jack richly deserved to break his crown. Jill's place was in the home. Since she forced herself into economic competition with man, no sympathy should be wasted upon her tumble downhill.

Or take this simple rhyme—

Rock-a-bye, baby, in the tree top,
When the wind blows the cradle will rock;
When the bough breaks the cradle will fall,
And down will come cradle, and baby and all.

The child, hearing this sung as a lullaby, goes to sleep without pondering upon the meaning of the lines. As the great educator has said, we should proceed logically. Impress upon the youthful mind that, but for the great policy of conservation, in a few years there would be no tree in which to rock-a-bye so much as a sparrow. Of course, it will rest entirely with the parents as to whether State or Federal conservation is advocated to the childish reason. The really logical way would be to present both sides of the case as fairly as possible and let the infant decide for itself. And what an opportunity for logical instruction there is in "The House That Jack Built."

This is the house that Jack built.
(Remarks on concrete building.)
This is the malt that lay in the house that Jack built.
Lesson on dangers of beer drinking and illicit brewing.
This is the rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built.

Danger to health of permitting rats to exist near dwelling places, with additional remarks on the bubonic plague.

There are no limits to the logical instruction arising from even such simple rhymes.
